thank you very much for your prompt reply. I will keep an eye out for future information regarding when new regulations will take effect.

I have a DHS trusted traveler ID (Global Entry) and I wasn't sure if it would be acceptable and I see that it's on the list of acceptable IDs.

Thanks again.

Not all compliant REAL ID Drivers Licenses have Gold Stars to indicate compliance.

REAL ID is a coordinated effort by the states and the Federal Government to improve the reliability and accuracy of state-issued identification documents, which should inhibit terrorists' ability to evade detection by using fraudulent identification. REAL ID implements a 9/11 Commission recommendation urging the federal government to "set standards for the issuance of sources of identification, such as driver's licenses."

DHS is implementing REAL ID through a period of phased enforcement over the next several years. In particular, the date for implementing the prohibition on boarding aircraft travel will be set after an evaluation of earlier phases and will not occur sooner than 2016.

Subject: Not for federal use DL question

Good afternoon,

I hope this question is OK for me to ask. I recently renewed my DL and was not aware of the new federal use law. Therefore I received my renewed Drivers License with the note on the top not for federal use I am planning my wedding in Texas, but flying back with my wedding party to Nevada next April.

Will i be able to utilize my ID or will I have to update it? I am just wondering, because the DMV in Las Vegas takes an entire work day. (I work for a not for profit organization)

I am also planing on a late summer trip and would like to utilize air services for this trip.

Until when am I able to fly with this particular ID?

Thank you,

In my research of this subject, I read that there is some contention regarding the time and expense of carrying out this directive at the drivers license renewal office.

As I pointed out in my original E-mail (at the bottom of this communique), it seems ironic that one should have to "re-prove" one's identity when "renewing" an ID which is considered the definitive ID for ALL security purposes.

Since you appear to be at "the head of the trough" for this directive, I was wondering if you might put forth the thought that requiring proof of something that has already been proven only threatens the individual's security (as per aforementioned communique).

In conclusion, I would like to reiterate the feasibility of saving time and money for the licensing offices and protecting personal security by accepting the "definitive ID" as a valid ID for renewing that ID.

Thank you for your time and attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

The REAL ID Act of 2005: Establishes minimum standards for the production and issuance of state-issued driver's licenses and identification cards and authorizes grants to assist states in implementing the requirements;

In order to receive a REAL ID compliant driver's license from the GA DMV you do need to bring both your birth certificate and social security card.

"REAL ID does NOT apply to the following:

*Being licensed by a state to drive.

As you can see by the communique below, the GA Department of Driver Services thinks it DOES apply.

Hi (b)(6)

The Real Id Act of 2005 was an Act of Congress that modified U.S. federal law pertaining to security, authentication, and issuance procedures standards for the state driver's licenses and identification (ID) cards, as well as various immigration issues pertaining to terrorism.

This is not just a GA or DDS law, this is a federal law.

I am writing to express concern over the documentation required to renew a driver's license.

To begin with, everyone else requiring proof of my identity asks to see my driver's license. Anyone most likely to recognize if the aforementioned license is falsified would seemingly be the agency that issues this "ID."

Yet, this agency requires that I bring in two of the most sacred documents of my identity when "renewing" my license.

I find it disturbing in this day of identity theft threats that I have to remove my birth certificate and social security card from their place of "safe keeping" in order to carry them out into public for the purpose of, once again, proving to the issuer of my primary identification card that I am who I am.

Unfortunately the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) does not have the authority to direct the State of Nevada to modify their pricing structure. DHS has established minimum standards for the issuance of driver's licenses and identification cards as part of the REAL ID Act, how a state implements those standards is up to them.

It is a requirement that applicants must show a connection between the name on their proof of identity and date of birth document and the name they are currently using. Apparently the State of Nevada was not satisfied with the documents you presented. It is our suggestion that you contact the Nevada DMV to determine if they have an alternative procedure for individuals in your situation.

June 18, 2015

To Whom It May Concern:

This letter is being written to question the intent of obtaining a State issued Real ID driver's license. I currently hold a Nevada driver's license with my first name, maiden name and married name. I do not use my middle name and have not done so in over 28 years. In addition to my home, my social security card, my bills, my credit cards, my bank accounts, paycheck stubs, and yes, even the IRS etc. all reflect the same name that appears on my current driver's license.

- State (District of Columbia) issued birth certificate (first, middle, last)
- Social Security Card- shows current name (First, maiden, married name)
- Tax records with Social Security Number- shows current name (First, maiden, married name)
- W-2 Form- shows current name (First, maiden, married name)
- Employment check stub with Social Security Number- shows current name (First, maiden, married name)
- Mortgage or rental receipt- shows current name (First, maiden, married name)

- Utility statement- shows current name (First, maiden, married name)
- Bank Accounts - shows current name (First, maiden, married name)
- Credit Cards - shows current name (First, maiden, married name)

When I went in to renew my driver's license and obtain the mandated Real ID I was informed that I would not be issued a Real ID with my name shown as on all the above referenced documents since my birth certificate shows a middle name. Once again that I have not used for a number of years as stated above.

Realizing that my wish of obtaining the Real ID from the Nevada DMV was not going to be met, I told the DMV clerk to issue me a regular driver's license since I have no idea why there is a problem with the name that is on my current driver's license and the legality of my name is now being questioned.

Even though I was informed that the name on my current license was not "correct" the clerk turned around and issued me another eight (8) year license with the same name that would not be valid on a Nevada Real ID following the Federal Government's mandate. I suppose I am okay to drive in Nevada or anywhere else in this country but not take a flight on Southwest Airlines.

In order for me to have a "legal document" to bring to DMV to show the name that I have been using and am recognized with, is going to be a very costly endeavor. After I pay the required name change court cost of $260.00, then place an ad in the paper to show a "name change" to show the name that I currently am using, this will run anywhere from $155.00 to $460.00 depending on what newspaper I choose.

This law seems to be affecting women by far more than the men as the women's names change due to marriages, divorces, careers or simply the fact that state DMV's offices don't have enough room on the license to accommodate our legal actual name(s). I do not know where this law actually came from or who introduced it, other than maybe Homeland Security. It appears that not a lot of thought went into how the implementation of this law was to be carried out thus creating a nightmare and undue stress for many US citizens namely women.

I feel if you are using any names on your birth certificate and have proof (as one of the required documents) and pursuant to the new Federal Government Real ID program who is attempting to assure my safety as a United State Citizen that the requirements be revisited and hopefully these requirements are changed as there is still time to comply with this regulation.

This entire process will certainly be expensive for me to comply with and not one I am wishing to accept. How on court papers do you list the name you are "currently using" and the name you are "wishing to change" to as being one and the same?

Most men in this country will never have to change their name which is lucky for them unlike what you asking of the women. The Real ID is forcing the women to have to reevaluate who we are. I am my father's daughter and I am proud to use his name. The fact that I got married was by choice and it does not define me or make me give up my own identity. The intent of this new mandate by the federal government is a wish at best, as I am not sure what the intent really is about. To be able to fly and be able to enter a nuclear power plant or a federal building that requires identification? Really?? Protecting me from terrorists?

I am not sure if or when violence of any kind will occur again, but I am clear that with all the measures the government is trying to take with this new Real ID system it still cannot guarantee 100% of my safety. This not only affects me but thousands and thousands if not millions of women. My father is already gone; please do not make me give up his name. If a terrorist act will be committed again, it won't be because of the color of my skin or the name I go by, it will be because I am an American.

Hello,

I am writing about the REAL ID Enforcement ACT. It is my understanding that Federal buildings will not be accepting drivers licenses from states who are non-compliant with the REAL ID regulations. Below are the states that are listed as noncompliant States/Territories. There is also a list of Compliant/Extension State/Territories. For the states identified they have an extension, does this mean that the state driver's license will be accepted until October 15, 2015? Or what is the deadline?

Also, information we received stated, "CMS visitors from these states/territories will need to provide alternative proof of identification (such as a passport) to gain entrance into CMS buildings." What other forms of identification would be acceptable other than a passport?

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

Subject: "NEW" Arizona Drivers License

Hello,

I am traveling from Arizona to Oregon and have recently updated my Arizona drivers license but was provided the "new" version. Per the information on the website for "Real ID Enforcement", Arizona is listed as one of the "non-compliant" states. I understand that I may present an alternative form of identification, i.e. a U.S. Passport. Unfortunately, I do not have a U.S. Passport so how will this affect my travel? Will it only be affected in 2016 rather than 2015?

Regarding the New York State Enhanced Drivers Licenses, this is an excerpt from our website at the link below:

May Federal agencies accept my Enhanced Driver's License?

Yes. State Enhanced Driver's Licenses (EDLs) designated as acceptable border-crossing documents by DHS under the Western Hemisphere Travel Initiative (WHTI) are acceptable for official federal purposes such as accessing a Federal facility or boarding a commercial aircraft. Individual agency policies may still apply.

Michigan, Minnesota, New York, Vermont, and Washington are the only states that currently issue EDLs. For more information on EDLs, please go to <http://www.dhs.gov/enhanced-drivers-licenses-what-are-they>.

Colleagues,

This communication is to notify our federal government partners that the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) that we are two weeks away from the implementation of the REAL ID Phased 3b Enforcement beginning on Oct 10, 2015.

As of this date, Federal agencies are prohibited from accepting driver's licenses or identification cards issued by noncompliant states for purpose of accessing military facilities and Federal facilities rated at Facility Security Levels 3, 4, or S and military facilities. Currently, this restriction only applies to driver's licenses and identification cards from Louisiana, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New York, and American Samoa. As this list is subject to periodic revision, you may always find the most recent list at <http://www.dhs.gov/secure-drivers-licenses> . Currently our process to review state extension applications will prevent any additional states to be added to the non-compliant list until mid-January when we release the findings. This will also minimize any confusion regarding non-compliant state status.

The Interagency Security Committee has produced REAL ID guide and can be found at:
http://www.dhs.gov/sites/default/files/publications/isc-real-id-guide-august-2015-S08_0.pdf

DHS is in the process of issuing and renewing REAL ID extensions. Although current extensions expired on October 10, DHS has provided a three-month grace period to allow states to provide additional information and take any necessary corrective action to warrant the receipt of an additional extension. By the time this grace period ends on January 10, 2016, DHS will provide Federal agencies with a complete, updated list of states subject to REAL ID enforcement.

- So far, the following states have had their extensions renewed through October 10, 2016: Arizona, Arkansas, Idaho, Kentucky, Michigan, Oklahoma, Oregon, Rhode Island, Texas, and Virginia.
- Louisiana and New York, which did not previously have extensions, have received extensions until October 10, 2016.
- New Hampshire has an extension until June 1, 2016, and will re-evaluate its status in the first half of 2016 to determine if the state will receive a further extension.

Federal agencies may accept driver's licenses and identification cards issued by compliant states and from states with an extension for accessing Federal facilities and entering nuclear power plants. DHS will continue to renew extensions for states on a rolling basis, with the current list found on the DHS website (<http://www.dhs.gov/real-id-enforcement-brief>).

In summary:

- Federal agencies may accept driver's licenses and identification cards for official purposes from compliant states and from states with an extension that expired on October 10, 2015. DHS will provide an updated extension list by January 10, 2016 (the date when the 3-month grace period expires).
- In addition, Federal agencies may now accept driver's licenses and identification cards issued by Louisiana, New Hampshire, and New York.
- The only states for which Federal agencies may not currently accept driver's licenses and identification cards are: Minnesota and American Samoa.

I hope this information is helpful. Let us know if you have any further questions.

Thank you for getting back to me Scott,

Can you elaborate on what "lawful status" means?

We were working under the assumption that the gold star meant a US Citizen, or green card holder and that a foreign person under a work visa and passport would not get a gold star.

Is that a correct assumption?

Thank you,

Good afternoon,

We are a defense contractor and as such must restrict access to US Person under the International Traffic in Arms Regulations (ITAR) 22 CFR Chapter I, Sub-chapter M, part §120.15. They have to be a lawful permanent resident as defined by 8USC 1101(a)(20) or a protected individual per 8 USC 1324b(a)(3).

Florida drivers licenses that comply with the REAL ID Act have gold star imprinted on the top right corner.

Does the Florida license with gold star indicate the owner is a US person as described in sentence one?

Thank you,

Your current licenses will work.

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

Unfortunately the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) does not have the authority to direct the State of Arkansas to modify their pricing structure. DHS has established minimum standards for the issuance of driver's licenses and identification cards as part of the REAL ID Act, how a state implements those standards is up to them.

It is a requirement that applicants must show a connection between the name on their proof of identity and date of birth document and the name they are currently using. Apparently the State of Arkansas was not satisfied with the documents you presented. It is our suggestion that you contact the Arkansas DMV to determine if they have an alternative procedure for individuals in your situation.

To whom it may concern,

I, (b)(6) am writing on behalf of my boyfriend, (b)(6) about problems he is having getting identification. I am writing on his behalf, because he is developmentally disabled.

Unfortunately, (b)(6) tried to get his identification for the first time in his life this year. He is 59 years of age. He has always worked under the name of (b)(6) and that is what is listed on his Social Security card. He has always worked for someone he knew well, and they would cash any checks he was issued. Unfortunately, the person he worked for for the past 26 yrs passed away a few years ago, and his daughter took over the bar he worked for. He continued to work for this woman, (b)(6); (b)(7)(C) owner of Fifth Avenue Hotel in Johnstown, PA. She sold this business at the end of last year, and he was recently fired from his long standing job.

He also received an IRS refund this year, in the form of a check, since he has no bank account. He cannot cash this check. If you would like to check, the amount is for $631.

When we tried to get him his birth certificate, we put his step father as his father on the form. Unfortunately, this was incorrect. We contacted the Dept of Health, and explained the situation to the clerk.

She sent us a form to be notarized, so that they could amend his birth certificate to (b)(6) instead of (b)(6) (his mother's maiden name, which is on his birth certificate). Again, we could not get the form notarized, even with proof from his baptismal certificate and first communion and confirmation documentation. The baptismal certificate says (b)(6) the first communion and confirmation say (b)(6). While this meets the criteria of documents dating over 15 years with the new name, the Notary would not accept it because he needs photo ID in order to get anything notarized. Penndot would not accept it either, since they need his birth certificate with (b)(6) on it.

This is ridiculous. I have done everything in my power and am at my wits end to try and get him ID. I understand the need for this, but people in his situation can do nothing to get an ID.

Thank you for your response in advance,

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

Currently New Hampshire has not filed an extension for 2015.

As for the Description and Schedule of Enforcement Phases:

The following enforcement measures are cumulative, with measures in each phase remaining in effect through successive phases. Each phase will begin with a 3-month period where agencies will provide notice to individuals attempting to use driver's licenses or identification cards from noncompliant states but still allow access. After this period is over, agencies will no longer accept such identification for entry to Federal facilities, and individuals will need to follow the agency's alternate procedures (to be made available by the agency).

- Phase 1: Restricted areas (i.e., areas accessible by agency personnel, contractors, and their guests) for DHS's Nebraska Avenue Complex (NAC) headquarters.
- Phase 2: Restricted areas for all Federal facilities and nuclear power plants.
- Phase 3: Semi-restricted areas (i.e., areas available to the general public but subject to ID-based access control) for most Federal facilities (subject to limitations described in the next section). Access to Federal facilities will continue to be allowed for purposes of applying for or receiving Federal benefits.
- Phase 4: Boarding federally regulated commercial aircraft. A driver's license or identification card from a noncompliant state may only be used in conjunction with an acceptable second form of ID for boarding federally regulated commercial aircraft.

DHS will conduct an evaluation following the implementation of the first three phases to assess the effects of enforcement and the progress of states in meeting the standards of the act. Before a date for Phase 4 is set, DHS will conduct an evaluation to inform a fair and achievable timeline. The date for implementing Phase 4 will be set after the evaluation has been complete; this phase will occur no sooner than 2016. The evaluation will also be used to inform the nature and timing of subsequent phases and to inform the pathway to full enforcement. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft or entering additional types of Federal facilities change.

Hello,

You previously provided some info regarding the status of Real ID in California. Would it be possible to share info with respect to whether New Hampshire has filed an extension under Real ID? The DHS website lists only that the extension was expired and will be subject to enforcement as of January 19, 2015. When the DHS website says "subject to enforcement" does this mean that federal funding could be impacted or what other enforcement actions might occur?

Many thanks,

California's extension expired on October 10, 2014.

The state has submitted a status update and is currently under consideration for a renewal.

Absent a renewal, this expiration would not affect California's enforcement until January 19, 2015 .

As we do not release the details of our communication with states to third parties, you will need to contact the California Government with any questions about the nature of the information provided by the state.

DHS requires visitors to present government-issued identification for access to its facilities. For visitors presenting a state-issued driver's license or identification card, DHS may only accept such documents if they are issued by states that are REAL ID compliant. If the state that issued your license is listed as noncompliant, please bring an alternate form of government-issued photo ID – such as a passport or Federal employee, military, or veteran identification card to facilitate access.

Subject: I want to use the name I have had for over 50 years as my middle name and aurname of over 22 years as my surname.

Two weeks ago I presented all of my identification proof to the Florida DMV office. I did not pas my eye test so received my official identification card. However, the clerk INSISTED that my name be on that document as (b)(6). I have been (b)(6) (b)(6) since July 24, 1992 when I married (b)(6) (now deceased). I also go by (b)(6) even to my Medicare and Social Security cards have my name listed that way. My full name is (b)(6) I married Mr. (b)(6) on May 20, 1961 and we divorced in 1978. Because I had children to care for, I did not change my name back to my maiden name when we divorced. I was (b)(6) (b)(6) until I married (b)(6) and added his name to mine, dropping the (b)(6) as I did so. My driver's license from July 27, 1992 when I got my Class A CDL until April 27, 2015 when I went to renew my expired driver's license with all of my proof of identity, certified birth certificate, and two marriage licenses documenting my name changes, failed my eye test and was issued the identification card I now have. The clerk said that Homeland Security requires that my name be the first and second names on my birth certificate and the surname I have from my marriage. I ask WHY?? Why must I now change my name to one which does not match ANYTHING else I have, not my Medicare Card,, not my Social Security Card, not ANY of my bank accounts nor my memberships in any organization?? What possible purpose does it serve to change my name to one which is also much more common than the one I want to use? I assure you that there are a whole lot more (b)(6) than there are (b)(6)

Now I have to get an additional or Auxiliary debit card for (b)(6) to add (b)(6) (b)(6) as a signatory on all of my bank accounts and attempt to change my Social Security and my Medicare, which, if there is any kind of snafu with those will make me homeless as I get so little money that I cannot go a month without it and be able to pay my mortgage, electric and phone bills, Medicare supplement insurance or get my medications since I am both a diabetic and a sufferer of Hashimoto's syndrome (low thyroid function and all of the side effects thereof.) I have a number of food and pollen allergies and suffer from osteo-arthritis as well. After 73 years, the body starts to wear out as my metal knee shows too.

I do not want to have to change everything! What can I do to get my name back to (b)(6) (b)(6) ??? Please help me with this. My date of birth is (b)(6) I was born in (b)(6) My parents were (b)(6) (b)(6) I married (b)(6) on (b)(6) (b)(6) in Indianapolis, Marion County, Indiana and our divorce was final on December 31, 1978 in Superior Court of Santa Clara County, California in San Jose, CA. I do not have my divorce papers easily available as I have moved since (b)(6) and I married. I presented those papers to the Clerk of Courts for Putnam County, Florida in 1992 when we got our marriage license. They are now somewhere in the 100 plus boxes that are stacked, still packed, in my garage. Since I did not drop (b)(6) from my name, I did not need them to prove my identity. That is another reason I do not want to have to become (b)(6) To get "official" copies of my very long divorce decree is likely to cost me as much as $100 from the Santa Clara Clerk of Courts. No way to I want to have to do that, ever! I want to stay (b)(6) (b)(6) If that is not possible, then let me present my late husband's death certificate and go back to being (b)(6) (b)(6) No, that is not my preference, but it is preferable to (b)(6) Otherwise I respectfully request that you send instructions to the Florida DMV to issue my identity card in my full name of (b)(6) that still doesn't solve the problem of matching my Social Security and Medicare cards, but it does show all of my names.

I don't yet have a passport. I need to get this matter settled before I have to apply for one. Otherwise I will insist that ALL of my legal names be put on that document. It is hell to have to sign with all four names since my I and first married surnames have ten and twelve letters respectively. Therefore I would prefer that it be firmly established that I am known as (b)(6) (b)(6) on my identification cards and, once I can get the fee saved and the application filled out, my passport and, after my cataracts are removed, my Florida driver's license. Please help me to accomplish this. Your department is the one that was blamed for the current change to (b)(6). Therefore, I figure your department if the only one who can fix it to the way it was for the past 22 year and 53 years respectively that I had (b)(6) and I (b)(6) in my name.

Thank you in advance for your help. Please also remember that I live on my Social Security Retirement monthly payment only and also qualify for Meals on Wheels and other extra help. In other words, I am living with an income gross under $16,00 and no car or other means of transportation except for the kindness of my friends and neighbors since I also live kind of out in the country where the nearest doctor and grocery store is 4 miles away and even the convenience store is a mile uphill. LOL I am a short, stout old lady who creates jewelry and afghans and just wants to my name back so I don't have problems every time I try to go to the doctor etc. It is bad enough that my knee means I have to be patted down whenever I fly a commercial airline. I don't ned ID hassles in my normal life. ☺

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

You can find an acceptable list of ID's for airline travel from TSA here:

I live in the state of Oklahoma and am planning to fly domestically in the near future. Can you tell me when the deadline for the Real ID Act goes into effect and I'll need an alternate form of ID to travel domestically?

Also are there other forms of ID that are less expensive than US Passports? I have an entire family involved and Passports are cost prohibitive!

Thanks for all your help!

Can you please tell me which, if any, states' extensions are set to expire prior to June 21, 2015? I have a large group coming in on June 21 to get employee badges and want to make sure we don't tell someone coming from a state with an extension that they are all set, only to find out that their state-issued license is not compliant because their state's extension expired prior to June 21.

DHS requires visitors to present government-issued identification for access to its facilities. For visitors presenting a state-issued driver's license or identification card, DHS may only accept such documents if they are issued by states that are REAL ID compliant. If the state that issued your license is listed as noncompliant, please bring an alternate form of government-issued photo ID - such as a passport or Federal employee, military, or veteran identification card to facilitate access.

Good Morning,

My son is 15 years old. He is going on a class trip to Puerto Rico in June.
 The TSA site calls for a State ID for travel.

He currently has his Driver's Permit, it is a photo ID, he is not yet old enough to get his Driver's License. Will the Driver's Permit be acceptable for travel to Puerto Rico? I am asking because if he has to use a State ID, then we will have to surrender his Driver's Permit as you cannot have a State ID and Permit concurrently.

Whoever told you that you needed a national ID card was incorrect. There is no national ID card.

If they were referring REAL ID, it is not a national ID card. It is a set of minimum security standards for the production and issuance of state-issued driver's licenses and identification cards.

Each state will continue to issue its own unique license and maintain its own records. REAL ID does not create new Federal access to state records or establish a Federal database of driver information.

Colleagues,

I would like to begin by introducing myself as the newest member of the REAL ID program team. I will be serving as your primary point of contact on all matters relating to implementation of REAL ID phased enforcement.

This communication is to notify our federal government partners that the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) has granted the State of Arizona an extension, through October 10, 2015, to meet the standards of the REAL ID Act of 2005 and its implementing regulation. For the duration of this extension, Federal agencies may accept driver's licenses and Identification cards issued by Arizona for official purposes in accordance with existing agency policies.

Also we would like to remind you that REAL ID enforcement Phase 3B begins on October 10, 2015. As of that date, Federal agencies are prohibited from accepting driver's licenses or identification cards issued by noncompliant states for purpose of accessing military facilities and Federal facilities rated at Facility Security Levels 3, 4, or 5 and military facilities. Currently, this restriction only applies to driver's licenses and identification cards from Louisiana, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New York, and American Samoa. As this list is subject to periodic revision, you may always find the most recent list at <http://www.dhs.gov/secure-drivers-licenses>.

The Interagency Security Committee is preparing to release guidelines to assist agencies in implementing REAL ID enforcement. I will make sure to let you know as soon as they are available. In the meantime, please feel free to contact me with any questions, concerns, or requests. I look forward to working with you all.

Dear (b)(6)

Thank you for the quick reply. I went to the link noted, looked everywhere but I was unable to find details on the documents required for submission by a state to comply as well as details on how the SP should be formatted. That said, where can I find the latest SP guidance and list of articles that must be developed from the security perspective?

Also, I read that a PIA is required. Can you kindly provide any templates you may have for the documentation required. I'm used to developing FISMA Security Plans, but it doesn't seem like that's the type of SP required.

The guidance I have for the SP is for 2009. Do you have newer guidance or is that still applicable? I attached it on my previous message.

I look forward to hearing from you. Have a wonderful day.

Sincerely,

(b)(6)

Subject: Real ID Latest Standards and Requirements for State

Good Evening,

I would like to attain a copy of the latest Real ID Standards and Requirements that must be follow by a State to apply and be compliant. The documents I have date back to 2009 (attached) and I'm hoping there are newer guidelines. I have a client who is requesting some help with the Security documentation and I need to have a clear understanding of the latest requirements. Kindly forward me the link or artifacts.

May you all have a bless day.

Sincerely,

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

Unfortunately all drivers licenses from the state of Missouri are non-compliant currently for REAL ID purposes. An acceptable alternate form of identification is a passport or TWIC card. You may also want to contact Whiteman AFB directly to see if they have alternate procedures such as escort to gain entry onto the facility.

You can find the latest information and requirements regarding the REAL ID program at the link below:

Subject: Question on MO real id changes

My husband works in Missouri, which is one of the states that require a real ID to enter military bases. He currently delivers at Whiteman AFB. He has a class A commercial/hazmat license. Is this ID still valid since it's a class A, or will he require further id? What id would work? His company seems really confused on this issue, so thought we'd ask you directly.

Thanks so much!

You will need to contact your local state DMV regarding your license issue. This is outside the purview of this office as the Federal Government does not issue driver's licenses.

I have my Illinois drivers license. CDL actually. So if I understand this right, my license will not be accepted after a certain date?? Even though I have the Haz-Mat endorsement on my license in which I received by paying YOU money to do a background check and giving the "all good" notice????
I will add up all monies spent on that scam and will be expecting a refund if I am required to spend MORE money on a different form of ID that is "acceptable." This country has turned into nothing but a fucking rip-off artist!

Ok. $$87 \times 4 \text{ renewals} = \348
Please send my refund immediately.

Thank you.

To Whom It May Concern,

Hello, I have one question which was raised when I applied for a duplicate social security card for my daughter. Does the Real ID Act require for all id's to have the name as it appears on your birth certificate? For example my birth includes my mothers maiden name, which is used in Puerto Rico. But all of my forms of ID like my drivers license and passport do not include my mothers maiden name as it is not used in the United States. My social security card on the other hand uses my name as it appears on my birth certificate as is required by their regulations. I will be flying to Canada in the end of June and do not want to have any issues with TSA or Immigration while traveling.

Regards,

(a) In General.—

The Transportation Security Administration shall be an administration of the Department of Transportation.

(b) Under Secretary.—

(1) Appointment.—

The head of the Administration shall be the Under Secretary of Transportation for Security. The Under Secretary shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.

(2) Qualifications.—The Under Secretary must—be a citizen of the United States; and have experience in a field directly related to transportation or security.

(3) Term.—

The term of office of an individual appointed as the Under Secretary shall be 5 years.

(c) Limitation on Ownership of Stocks and Bonds.—

The Under Secretary may not own stock in or bonds of a transportation or security enterprise or an enterprise that makes equipment that could be used for security purposes.

(d) Functions.—The Under Secretary shall be responsible for security in all modes of transportation, including—carrying out chapter 449, relating to civil aviation security, and related research and development activities; and security responsibilities over other modes of transportation that are exercised by the Department of Transportation.

(e) Screening Operations.—The Under Secretary shall—be responsible for day-to-day Federal security screening operations for passenger air transportation and intrastate air transportation under sections 44901 and 44935; develop standards for the hiring and retention of security screening personnel;

(2)

(3)

train and test security screening personnel; and be responsible for hiring and training personnel to provide security screening at all airports in the United States where screening is required under section 44901, in consultation with the Secretary of Transportation and the heads of other appropriate Federal agencies and departments.

(f) Additional Duties and Powers.—In addition to carrying out the functions specified in subsections (d) and (e), the Under Secretary shall—receive, assess, and distribute intelligence information related to transportation security; assess threats to transportation;

(2)

(3)

develop policies, strategies, and plans for dealing with threats to transportation security; make other plans related to transportation security, including coordinating countermeasures with appropriate departments, agencies, and instrumentalities of the United States Government; serve as the primary liaison for transportation security to the intelligence and law enforcement communities; on a day-to-day basis, manage and provide operational guidance to the field security resources of the Administration, including Federal Security Managers as provided by section 44933; enforce security-related regulations and requirements;

(4)

(5)

(6)

(7)

(8)

identify and undertake research and development activities necessary to enhance transportation security;

(9)

inspect, maintain, and test security facilities, equipment, and systems;

(10)

ensure the adequacy of security measures for the transportation of cargo; oversee the implementation, and ensure the adequacy, of security measures at airports and other transportation facilities;

(11)

(12)

require background checks for airport security screening personnel, individuals with access to secure areas of airports, and other transportation security personnel; work in conjunction with the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration with respect to any actions or activities that may affect aviation safety or air carrier operations; work with the International Civil Aviation Organization and appropriate aeronautic authorities of foreign governments under section 44907 to address security concerns on passenger flights by foreign air carriers in foreign air transportation; and carry out such other duties, and exercise such other powers, relating to transportation security as the Under Secretary considers appropriate, to the extent authorized by law.

(13)

(14)

(g) National Emergency Responsibilities.—

(1) In general.—Subject to the direction and control of the Secretary, the Under Secretary, during a national emergency, shall have the following responsibilities:

(A)

To coordinate domestic transportation, including aviation, rail, and other surface transportation, and maritime transportation (including port security).

(B)

To coordinate and oversee the transportation-related responsibilities of other departments and agencies of the Federal Government other than the Department of Defense and the military departments.

(C)

To coordinate and provide notice to other departments and agencies of the Federal Government, and appropriate agencies of State and local governments, including departments and agencies for transportation, law enforcement, and border control, about threats to transportation.

(D)

To carry out such other duties, and exercise such other powers, relating to transportation during a national emergency as the Secretary shall prescribe.

(2) Authority of other departments and agencies.—

The authority of the Under Secretary under this subsection shall not supersede the authority of any other department or agency of the Federal Government under law with respect to transportation or transportation-related matters, whether or not during a national emergency.

(3) Circumstances.—

The Secretary shall prescribe the circumstances constituting a national emergency for purposes of this subsection.

(h) Management of Security Information.—In consultation with the Transportation Security Oversight Board, the Under Secretary shall—enter into memoranda of understanding with Federal agencies or other entities to share or otherwise cross-check as necessary data on individuals identified on Federal agency databases who may pose a risk to transportation or national security; establish procedures for notifying the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration, appropriate State and local law enforcement officials, and airport or airline security officers of the identity of individuals known to pose, or suspected of posing, a risk of air piracy or terrorism or a threat to airline or passenger safety;

(3) in consultation with other appropriate Federal agencies and air carriers, establish policies and procedures requiring air carriers—to use information from government agencies to identify individuals on passenger lists who may be a threat to civil aviation or national security; and if such an individual is identified, notify appropriate law enforcement agencies, prevent the individual from boarding an aircraft, or take other appropriate action with respect to that individual; and consider requiring passenger air carriers to share passenger lists with appropriate Federal agencies for the purpose of identifying individuals who may pose a threat to aviation safety or national security.

(B)

(4)

(i) View of NTSB.—

In taking any action under this section that could affect safety, the Under Secretary shall give great weight to the timely views of the National Transportation Safety Board.

(j) Acquisitions.—

(1) In general.—The Under Secretary is authorized—to acquire (by purchase, lease, condemnation, or otherwise) such real property, or any interest therein, within and outside the continental United States, as the Under Secretary considers necessary; to acquire (by purchase, lease, condemnation, or otherwise) and to construct, repair, operate, and maintain such personal property (including office space and patents), or any interest therein, within and outside the continental United States, as the Under Secretary considers necessary; to lease to others such real and personal property and to provide by contract or otherwise for necessary facilities for the welfare of its employees and to acquire, maintain, and operate equipment for these facilities;

(A)

(B)

(C)

to acquire services, including such personal services as the Secretary determines necessary, and to acquire (by purchase, lease, condemnation, or otherwise) and to construct, repair, operate, and maintain research and testing sites and facilities; and in cooperation with the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration, to utilize the research and development facilities of the Federal Aviation Administration.

(2) Title.—

Title to any property or interest therein acquired pursuant to this subsection shall be held by the Government of the United States.

(k) Transfers of Funds.—

The Under Secretary is authorized to accept transfers of unobligated balances and unexpended balances of funds appropriated to other Federal agencies (as such term is defined in section 551(1) of title 5) to carry out functions transferred, on or after the date of enactment of the Aviation and Transportation Security Act, by law to the Under Secretary.

(l) Regulations.—

(1) In general.—

The Under Secretary is authorized to issue, rescind, and revise such regulations as are necessary to carry out the functions of the Administration.

(2) Emergency procedures.—

(A) In general.—

Notwithstanding any other provision of law or executive order (including an executive order requiring a cost-benefit analysis), if the Under Secretary determines that a regulation or security directive must be issued immediately in order to protect transportation security, the Under Secretary shall issue the regulation or security directive without providing notice or an opportunity for comment and without prior approval of the Secretary.

(B) Review by transportation security oversight board.—

Any regulation or security directive issued under this paragraph shall be subject to review by the Transportation Security Oversight Board established under section 115. Any regulation or security directive issued under this paragraph shall remain effective for a period not to exceed 90 days unless ratified or disapproved by the Board or rescinded by the Under Secretary.

(3) Factors to consider.—

In determining whether to issue, rescind, or revise a regulation under this section, the Under Secretary shall consider, as a factor in the final determination, whether the costs of the regulation are excessive in relation to the enhancement of security the regulation will provide. The Under Secretary may waive requirements for an analysis that estimates the number of lives that will be saved by the regulation and the monetary value of such lives if the Under Secretary determines that it is not feasible to make such an estimate.

(4) Airworthiness objections by faa.—

(A) In general.—

The Under Secretary shall not take an aviation security action under this title if the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration notifies the Under Secretary that the action could adversely affect the airworthiness of an aircraft.

(B) Review by secretary.—

Notwithstanding subparagraph (A), the Under Secretary may take such an action, after receiving a notification concerning the action from the Administrator under subparagraph (A), if the Secretary of Transportation subsequently approves the action.

(m) Personnel and Services; Cooperation by Under Secretary.—

(1) Authority of under secretary.—

In carrying out the functions of the Administration, the Under Secretary shall have the same authority as is provided to the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration under subsections (

) and (m) of section 106.

(2) Authority of agency heads.—

The head of a Federal agency shall have the same authority to provide services, supplies, equipment, personnel, and facilities to the Under Secretary as the head has to provide services, supplies, equipment, personnel, and facilities to the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration under section 106(m).

(n) Personnel Management System.—

The personnel management system established by the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration under section 40122 shall apply to employees of the Transportation Security Administration, or, subject to the requirements of such section, the Under Secretary may make such modifications to the personnel management system with respect to such employees as the Under Secretary considers appropriate, such as adopting aspects of other personnel systems of the Department of Transportation.

(o) Authority of Inspector General.—

The Transportation Security Administration shall be subject to the Inspector General Act of 1978 (5 U.S.C. App.) and other laws relating to the authority of the Inspector General of the Department of Transportation.

(p) Law Enforcement Powers.—

(1) In general.—

The Under Secretary may designate an employee of the Transportation Security Administration or other Federal agency to serve as a law enforcement officer.

(2) Powers.—While engaged in official duties of the Administration as required to fulfill the responsibilities under this section, a law enforcement officer designated under paragraph (1) may—carry a firearm;

make an arrest without a warrant for any offense against the United States committed in the presence of the officer, or for any felony cognizable under the laws of the United States if the officer has probable cause to believe that the person to be arrested has committed or is committing the felony; and seek and execute warrants for arrest or seizure of evidence issued under the authority of the United States upon probable cause that a violation has been committed.

(3) Guidelines on exercise of authority.—

The authority provided by this subsection shall be exercised in accordance with guidelines prescribed by the Under Secretary, in consultation with the Attorney General of the United States, and shall include adherence to the Attorney General's policy on use of deadly force.

(4) Revocation or suspension of authority.—

The powers authorized by this subsection may be rescinded or suspended should the Attorney General determine that the Under Secretary has not complied with the guidelines prescribed in paragraph (3) and conveys the determination in writing to the Secretary of Transportation and the Under Secretary.

(q) Authority To Exempt.—

The Under Secretary may grant an exemption from a regulation prescribed in carrying out this section if the Under Secretary determines that the exemption is in the public interest.

(r) Nondisclosure of Security Activities.—

(1) In general.—Notwithstanding section 552 of title 5, the Under Secretary shall prescribe regulations prohibiting the disclosure of information obtained or developed in carrying out security under authority of the Aviation and Transportation Security Act (Public Law 107-71) or under chapter 449 of this title if the Under Secretary decides that disclosing the information would—be an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy;

(B)

reveal a trade secret or privileged or confidential commercial or financial information; or be detrimental to the security of transportation.

(2) Availability of information to congress.—

Paragraph (1) does not authorize information to be withheld from a committee of Congress authorized to have the information.

(3) Limitation on transferability of duties.—

Except as otherwise provided by law, the Under Secretary may not transfer a duty or power under this subsection to another department, agency, or instrumentality of the United States.

(4) Limitations.—Nothing in this subsection, or any other provision of law, shall be construed to authorize the designation of information as sensitive security information (as defined in section 1520.5 of title 49, Code of Federal Regulations)— to conceal a violation of law, inefficiency, or administrative error;

(B)

to prevent embarrassment to a person, organization, or agency;

(C)

to restrain competition; or

to prevent or delay the release of information that does not require protection in the interest of transportation security, including basic scientific research information not clearly related to transportation security.

(s) Transportation Security Strategic Planning.—

(1) In general.—The Secretary of Homeland Security shall develop, prepare, implement, and update, as needed—

(A)

a National Strategy for Transportation Security; and transportation modal security plans addressing security risks, including threats, vulnerabilities, and consequences, for aviation, railroad, ferry, highway, maritime, pipeline, public transportation, over-the-road bus, and other transportation infrastructure assets.

(2) Role of secretary of transportation.—

The Secretary of Homeland Security shall work jointly with the Secretary of Transportation in developing, revising, and updating the documents required by paragraph (1).

(3) Contents of national strategy for transportation security.—The National Strategy for Transportation Security shall include the following:

(A)

An identification and evaluation of the transportation assets in the United States that, in the interests of national security and commerce, must be protected from attack or disruption by terrorist or other hostile forces, including modal security plans for aviation, bridge and tunnel, commuter rail and ferry, highway, maritime, pipeline, rail, mass transit, over-the-road bus, and other public transportation infrastructure assets that could be at risk of such an attack or disruption.

(B)

The development of risk-based priorities, based on risk assessments conducted or received by the Secretary of Homeland Security (including assessments conducted under the Implementing Recommendations of the 9/11 Commission Act of 2007 [\[1\]](#)) across all transportation modes and realistic deadlines for addressing security needs associated with those assets referred to in subparagraph (A).

(C)

The most appropriate, practical, and cost-effective means of defending those assets against threats to their security.

(D)

A forward-looking strategic plan that sets forth the agreed upon roles and missions of Federal, State, regional, local, and tribal authorities and establishes mechanisms for encouraging cooperation and participation by private sector entities, including nonprofit employee labor organizations, in the implementation of such plan.

(E)

A comprehensive delineation of prevention, response, and recovery responsibilities and issues regarding threatened and executed acts of terrorism within the United States and threatened and executed acts of terrorism outside the United States to the extent such acts affect United States transportation systems.

(F)

A prioritization of research and development objectives that support transportation security needs, giving a higher priority to research and development directed toward protecting vital transportation assets. Transportation security research and development projects shall be based, to the extent practicable, on such prioritization. Nothing in the preceding sentence shall be construed to require the termination of any research or development project initiated by the Secretary of Homeland Security or the Secretary of Transportation before the date of enactment of the Implementing Recommendations of the 9/11 Commission Act of 2007.

(G)

A 3- and 10-year budget for Federal transportation security programs that will achieve the priorities of the National Strategy for Transportation Security.

(H)

Methods for linking the individual transportation modal security plans and the programs contained therein, and a plan for addressing the security needs of intermodal transportation.

(I)

Transportation modal security plans described in paragraph (1)(B), including operational recovery plans to expedite, to the maximum extent practicable, the return to operation of an adversely affected transportation system following a major terrorist attack on that system or other incident. These plans shall be coordinated with the resumption of trade protocols required under section 202 of the SAFE Port Act (6 U.S.C. 942) and the National Maritime Transportation Security Plan required under section 70103\(a\) of title 46.

(4) Submissions of plans to congress.—

(A) Initial strategy.—

The Secretary of Homeland Security shall submit the National Strategy for Transportation Security, including the transportation modal security plans, developed under this subsection to the appropriate congressional committees not later than April 1, 2005.

(B) Subsequent versions.—

After December 31, 2005, the Secretary of Homeland Security shall submit the National Strategy for Transportation Security, including the transportation modal security plans and any revisions to the National Strategy for Transportation Security and the transportation modal security plans, to appropriate congressional committees not less frequently than April 1 of each even-numbered year.

(C) Periodic progress report.—

(i) Requirement for report.—

Each year, in conjunction with the submission of the budget to Congress under section 1105\(a\) of title 31, United States Code, the Secretary of Homeland Security shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees an assessment of the progress made on implementing the National Strategy for Transportation Security, including the transportation modal security plans.

(ii) Content.—Each progress report submitted under this subparagraph shall include, at a minimum, the following:

(I)

Recommendations for improving and implementing the National Strategy for Transportation Security and the transportation modal and intermodal security plans that the Secretary of Homeland Security, in consultation with the Secretary of Transportation, considers appropriate.

(II)

An accounting of all grants for transportation security, including grants and contracts for research and development, awarded by the Secretary of Homeland Security in the most recent fiscal year and a description of how such grants accomplished the goals of the National Strategy for Transportation Security.

(III) An accounting of all—

(aa)

funds requested in the President's budget submitted pursuant to section 1105 of title 31 for the most recent fiscal year for transportation security, by mode; personnel working on transportation security by mode, including the number of contractors; and information on the turnover in the previous year among senior staff of the Department of Homeland Security, including component agencies, working on transportation security issues. Such information shall include the number of employees who have permanently left the office, agency, or area in which they worked, and the amount of time that they worked for the Department.

(cc)

(iii) Written explanation of transportation security activities not delineated in the national strategy for transportation security.—

At the end of each fiscal year, the Secretary of Homeland Security shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a written explanation of any Federal transportation security activity that is inconsistent with the National Strategy for Transportation Security, including the amount of funds to be expended for the activity and the number of personnel involved.

(D) Classified material.—

Any part of the National Strategy for Transportation Security or the transportation modal security plans that involve information that is properly classified under criteria established by Executive order shall be submitted to the appropriate congressional committees separately in a classified format.

(E) Appropriate congressional committees defined.—

In this subsection, the term “appropriate congressional committees” means the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure and the Committee on Homeland Security of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs, and the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate.

(5) Priority Status.—

(A) In general.—

The National Strategy for Transportation Security shall be the governing document for Federal transportation security efforts.

(B) Other plans and reports.—The National Strategy for Transportation Security shall include, as an integral part or as an appendix—the current National Maritime Transportation Security Plan under section 70103 of title 46;

(i)

(ii)

the report required by section 44938 of this title;

(iii)

transportation modal security plans required under this section;

(iv)

the transportation sector specific plan required under Homeland Security Presidential Directive–7; and any other transportation security plan or report that the Secretary of Homeland Security determines appropriate for inclusion.

(6) Coordination.—

In carrying out the responsibilities under this section, the Secretary of Homeland Security, in coordination with the Secretary of Transportation, shall consult, as appropriate, with Federal, State, and local agencies, tribal governments, private sector entities (including nonprofit employee labor organizations), institutions of higher learning, and other entities.

(7) Plan distribution.—

The Secretary of Homeland Security shall make available and appropriately publicize an unclassified version of the National Strategy for Transportation Security, including its component transportation modal security plans, to Federal, State, regional, local and tribal authorities, transportation system owners or operators, private sector stakeholders, including nonprofit employee labor organizations representing transportation employees, institutions of higher learning, and other appropriate entities.

(u) ⁽²⁾ Transportation Security Information Sharing Plan.—

(1) Definitions.—In this subsection:

(A) Appropriate congressional committees.—

The term “appropriate congressional committees” has the meaning given that term in subsection (1).⁽³⁾

(B) Plan.—

The term “Plan” means the Transportation Security Information Sharing Plan established under paragraph (2).

(C) Public and private stakeholders.—

The term “public and private stakeholders” means Federal, State, and local agencies, tribal governments, and appropriate private entities, including nonprofit employee labor organizations representing transportation employees.

(D) Secretary.—

The term “Secretary” means the Secretary of Homeland Security.

(E) Transportation security information.—

The term "transportation security information" means information relating to the risks to transportation modes, including aviation, public transportation, railroad, ferry, highway, maritime, pipeline, and over-the-road bus transportation, and may include specific and general intelligence products, as appropriate.

(2) Establishment of plan.—

The Secretary of Homeland Security, in consultation with the program manager of the information sharing environment established under section 1016 of the Intelligence Reform and Terrorism Prevention Act of 2004 (6 U.S.C. 485), the Secretary of Transportation, and public and private stakeholders, shall establish a Transportation Security Information Sharing Plan. In establishing the Plan, the Secretary shall gather input on the development of the Plan from private and public stakeholders and the program manager of the information sharing environment established under section 1016 of the Intelligence Reform and Terrorism Prevention Act of 2004 (6 U.S.C. 485).

(3) Purpose of plan.—

The Plan shall promote sharing of transportation security information between the Department of Homeland Security and public and private stakeholders.

(4) Content of plan.—The Plan shall include—a description of how intelligence analysts within the Department of Homeland Security will coordinate their activities within the Department and with other Federal, State, and local agencies, and tribal governments, including coordination with existing modal information sharing centers and the center described in section 1410 of the Implementing Recommendations of the 9/11 Commission Act of 2007;

(B)

the establishment of a point of contact, which may be a single point of contact within the Department of Homeland Security, for each mode of transportation for the sharing of transportation security information with public and private stakeholders, including an explanation and justification to the appropriate congressional committees if the point of contact established pursuant to this subparagraph differs from the agency within the Department that has the primary authority, or has been delegated such authority by the Secretary, to regulate the security of that transportation mode;

a reasonable deadline by which the Plan will be implemented; and a description of resource needs for fulfilling the Plan.

(5) Coordination with information sharing.—The Plan shall be—implemented in coordination, as appropriate, with the program manager for the information sharing environment established under section 1016 of the Intelligence Reform and Terrorism Prevention Act of 2004 (6 U.S.C. 485); and consistent with the establishment of the information sharing environment and any policies, guidelines, procedures, instructions, or standards established by the President or the program manager for the implementation and management of the information sharing environment.

(6) Reports to congress.—

(A) In general.—

Not later than 150 days after the date of enactment of this subsection, and annually thereafter, the Secretary shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees, a report containing the Plan.

(B) Annual report.—

Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this subsection, the Secretary shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report on updates to and the implementation of the Plan.

(7) Survey and report.—

(A) In general.—

The Comptroller General of the United States shall conduct a biennial survey of the satisfaction of recipients of transportation intelligence reports disseminated under the Plan.

(B) Information sought.—

The survey conducted under subparagraph (A) shall seek information about the quality, speed, regularity, and classification of the transportation security information products disseminated by the Department of Homeland Security to public and private stakeholders.

(C) Report.—

Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of the Implementing Recommendations of the 9/11 Commission Act of 2007, and every even numbered year thereafter, the Comptroller General shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees, a report on the results of the survey conducted under subparagraph (A). The Comptroller General shall also provide a copy of the report to the Secretary.

(8) Security clearances.—

The Secretary shall, to the greatest extent practicable, take steps to expedite the security clearances needed for designated public and private stakeholders to receive and obtain access to classified information distributed under this section, as appropriate.

(9) Classification of material.—

The Secretary, to the greatest extent practicable, shall provide designated public and private stakeholders with transportation security information in an unclassified format.

(v) Enforcement of Regulations and Orders of the Secretary of Homeland Security.—

(1) Application of subsection.—

(A) In general.—

This subsection applies to the enforcement of regulations prescribed, and orders issued, by the Secretary of Homeland Security under a provision of chapter 701 of title 46 and under a provision of this title other than a provision of chapter 449 (in this subsection referred to as an "applicable provision of this title").

(B) Violations of chapter 449.—

The penalties for violations of regulations prescribed and orders issued by the Secretary of Homeland Security under chapter 449 of this title are provided under chapter 463 of this title.

(C) Nonapplication to certain violations.—

(i) Paragraphs (2) through (5) do not apply to violations of regulations prescribed, and orders issued, by the Secretary of Homeland Security under a provision of this title—involving the transportation of personnel or shipments of materials by contractors where the Department of Defense has assumed control and responsibility; by a member of the armed forces of the United States when performing official duties; or by a civilian employee of the Department of Defense when performing official duties.

(I)

(II)

(ii)

Violations described in subclause (I), (II), or (III) of clause (i) shall be subject to penalties as determined by the Secretary of Defense or the Secretary's designee.

(2) Civil penalty.—

(A) In general.—

A person is liable to the United States Government for a civil penalty of not more than $10,000 for a violation of a regulation prescribed, or order issued, by the Secretary of Homeland Security under an applicable provision of this title.

(B) Repeat violations.—

A separate violation occurs under this paragraph for each day the violation continues.

(3) Administrative imposition of civil penalties.—

(A) In general.—

The Secretary of Homeland Security may impose a civil penalty for a violation of a regulation prescribed, or order issued, under an applicable provision of this title. The Secretary shall give written notice of the finding of a violation and the penalty.

(B) Scope of civil action.—

In a civil action to collect a civil penalty imposed by the Secretary under this subsection, a court may not re-examine issues of liability or the amount of the penalty.

(C) Jurisdiction.—The district courts of the United States shall have exclusive jurisdiction of civil actions to collect a civil penalty imposed by the Secretary under this subsection if—

(I) the amount in controversy is more than—

(I)

$400,000, if the violation was committed by a person other than an individual or small business concern; or

(II)

$50,000 if the violation was committed by an individual or small business concern;

(ii)

the action is in rem or another action in rem based on the same violation has been brought; or another action has been brought for an injunction based on the same violation.

(iii)

(D)Maximum penalty.—The maximum civil penalty the Secretary administratively may impose under this paragraph is—

(i)

$400,000, if the violation was committed by a person other than an individual or small business concern; or

(ii)

$50,000, if the violation was committed by an individual or small business concern.

(E)Notice and opportunity to request hearing.—Before imposing a penalty under this section the Secretary shall provide to the person against whom the penalty is to be imposed—written notice of the proposed penalty; and the opportunity to request a hearing on the proposed penalty, if the Secretary receives the request not later than 30 days after the date on which the person receives notice.

(i)

(ii)

(4) Compromise and setoff.—

The Secretary may compromise the amount of a civil penalty imposed under this subsection.

(B)

The Government may deduct the amount of a civil penalty imposed or compromised under this subsection from amounts it owes the person liable for the penalty.

(5)Investigations and proceedings.—

Chapter 461 shall apply to investigations and proceedings brought under this subsection to the same extent that it applies to investigations and proceedings brought with respect to aviation security duties designated to be carried out by the Secretary.

(6)Definitions.—In this subsection:

(A)Person.—The term "person" does not include—the United States Postal Service; or

(i)

(ii)

the Department of Defense.

(B)Small business concern.—

The term "small business concern" has the meaning given that term in section 3 of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 632).

(7) Enforcement transparency.—

(A)In general.—Not later than December 31, 2008, and annually thereafter, the Secretary shall—provide an annual summary to the public of all enforcement actions taken by the Secretary under this subsection; and include in each such summary the docket number of each enforcement action, the type of alleged violation, the penalty or penalties proposed, and the final assessment amount of each penalty.

(i)

(ii)

(B)Electronic availability.—

Each summary under this paragraph shall be made available to the public by electronic means.

(C)Relationship to the freedom of information act and the privacy act.—

Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to require disclosure of information or records that are exempt from disclosure under sections 552 or 552a of title 5.

(D)Enforcement guidance.—

Not later than 180 days after the enactment of the Implementing Recommendations of the 9/11 Commission Act of 2007, the Secretary shall provide a report to the public describing the enforcement process established under this subsection.

(w)Authorization of Appropriations.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary of Homeland Security for—

(1) railroad security—

$488,000,000 for fiscal year 2008;

(B)

$483,000,000 for fiscal year 2009;

(C)

$508,000,000 for fiscal year 2010; and

$508,000,000 for fiscal year 2011;

(2) over-the-road bus and trucking security—

$14,000,000 for fiscal year 2008;

(B)

$27,000,000 for fiscal year 2009;

(C)

$27,000,000 for fiscal year 2010; and

$27,000,000 for fiscal year 2011; and

(3) hazardous material and pipeline security—

$12,000,000 for fiscal year 2008;

(B)

$12,000,000 for fiscal year 2009; and

(C)

$12,000,000 for fiscal year 2010.

Hello, my name is (b)(6) I sent the message below yesterday.
 You called me on my cell phone today.
 I called you back with the number that was showing on my cell phone.
 An operator answered my call and had no idea who to refer me to.
 I explained what information I would like and she still didn't know exactly who to refer me to.

If possible, could you please call me back.
 If I don't answer, I'm probably driving a School Bus and can't take your call.
 You can leave me a voice mail OR e-mail me back.

Hello,

Please explain to me exactly how adult adoptees which do not have access to their "original birth certificates", are not denied liberties under the "real ID" act?

Closed adoption states redact, manipulate and distort birth certificate information and sequester this identifying information for multiple lifetimes. Thus, [the States] provide misleading information to adoptees about one's birth; which is then provided as evidence [to the Federal Government] in support of one's citizenship to obtain the real ID card.

In essence, adoptees will further loose civil liberties, for non-compliance of this act.

Hello,

The question came up, will the retired Military Identification card be accepted the same way at the TSA airport security check point as the new state issued drivers license required for airline travel?

I write a newsletter for a group of military retirees, mostly in Minnesota, and would like to put a small blurb in the next newsletter on the subject of the new Real ID.

When the Minnesota state drivers license system is up and running, will our retired Military IDs be as good as the new IDs?

To Whom It May Concern,

I have a Washington State driver's license that does not expire until 02-01-2021. How can I get an enhanced driver's license before the deadline of January 22, 2018? Will I have to pay a fee again before my non-enhanced license I have now expires?

Thanks for your help.

Hello. I have a question about the REAL ID act and my Missouri license. I have a trip planned to see someone at Scott AFB and I just heard that my ID will no longer be accepted. And I don't have a passport.. How can I get on base without that? Will my birth certificate & social security card work along with my ID? Everything's paid for and I can't not go because I don't have the right ID.

Good afternoon,

Am I correct when reading the FAQ's pertaining to REAL ID that I will be able to travel domestically with my MN driver's license (not enhanced) until January 22, 2018 (assuming MN does not comply with REAL ID regulations)?

I have a question in behalf of a friend who lives and resides in Chicago, Illinois. He' s currently holding a driver's license originally issued in 2005 and has renewed twice. His license will expire next year, 2016. My question is will he be required to submit documentations again like he did the first time he applied for a driver's license?
(his license says: Class D, Rest: B, type ORG).

Thank you very much.

Thanks, (b)(6) I appreciate your responsive reply. I am frankly stunned that the security of an important national document is relegated to the state level rather than handled under Federal law by competent authority, most obviously the standards established under law to be NIST.

The short answer is that the REAL ID Act does not govern the structure and componentry of encryption for systems. This is conducted at the State level and you would need to contact them regarding your questions.

What is the structure and componentry of the encryption system for the REAL ID? I am particularly interested in how NIST is involved in developing the standards for its encryption, and how is the RNG component chosen for the encryption, and does it comprise a genuine hardware RNG or is it a pseudorandom number generator?

The short answer is there are links on our site that allow you to sign up for updates as they occur. Currently there are no restrictions using a state issued driver's license to travel on airplanes at this time. The TSA enforcement date has been set to begin on Jan. 22, 2018.

1) Okay

2) I am aware of the TSA link showing acceptable list of IDs for airline travel, but it does not answer my question posed in my original inquiry. Restated here, 'TSA states one of the acceptable forms of identification is "U.S. military ID (active duty or retired military and their dependents, and DoD civilians)". Is the Common Access Card (CAC) included in this statement as an acceptable form of identification to be used at a TSA checkpoint for CONUS commercial air travel?'

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

Subject: REAL ID and other ID for CONUS commercial air travel

We have two very pertinent questions concerning CONUS air travel on commercial airlines. Please RSVP.

1) With respect to REAL ID and according to 6 CFR Part 37, Office of the Secretary, DHS, Final Rule, the Summary states, "This final rule changes both document enrollment dates to October 1, 2020". Does this mean, in relation to CONUS commercial air travel, that non-REAL ID driver's licenses will still be accepted at TSA checkpoints up to this date?

2) Without respect to future REAL ID requirements, there are other forms of identification TSA lists as acceptable. TSA states one of the acceptable forms of identification is "U.S. military ID (active duty or retired military and their dependents, and DoD civilians)". Is the Common Access Card (CAC) included in this statement as an acceptable form of identification to be used at a TSA checkpoint for CONUS commercial air travel?

Answers to these questions will alleviate much confusion many millions are experiencing, wondering when/if they will have to hold a REAL ID driver's license or if their CAC will suffice for CONUS air travel. You may also want to include these questions in their entirety as FAQs for that reason. Thank you.

Respectfully,

(b)(6)

...and millions of other CONUS air travelers

I currently do not have a passport and have a valid Washington Drivers License, Birth Certificate, SSN Card with me. I am flying out to Ontario, CA tomorrow and return January 10th to Seattle, WA. My friend just forwarded me a story on this possibly taking place January 10th for WA state residents. I am curious if I will be unable to board to my return flight and am wondering if I need to cancel my trip ASAP. Can you please confirm with me how stern they will be on this? Hello, Unfortunately, I live in Illinois and I had a question regarding the REAL ID Enforcement process that will start here on January 10th.

On your FAQ page, it's written:

- • * Phase 4: Boarding federally regulated commercial aircraft. A driver's license or identification card from a noncompliant state may only be used in conjunction with an acceptable second form of ID for boarding federally regulated commercial aircraft.

In the case that an individual does not obtain a passport, are there other forms of ID that will be acceptable in conjunction with a driver's license? If so, what are they?

Hello,

Can you tell me, what's the status of South Carolina's compliance with the Real ID law?

Do you know when travelers with S.C. driver's licenses will need alternative form of identification for airplanes?

Will the rules, when implemented, also apply to federal buildings?

Subject: Real ID Act

Hello ,

My name is (b)(6) I currently reside in New Jersey. I have a question regards to the "Real ID Act".

For Christmas Dec 2015 – I was given a airplane ticket to Puerto Rico for Feb 26- March 6- of 2016, I do not have a passport as of right now .

Will this Act affect me in any way as far as using my driver identification I.D to travel on these dates ?

Thank You.

Date:	2016/01/05 19:06:22

We have two very pertinent questions concerning CONUS air travel on commercial airlines. Please RSVP.

1) With respect to REAL ID and according to 6 CFR Part 37, Office of the Secretary, DHS, Final Rule, the Summary states, "This final rule changes both document enrollment dates to October 1, 2020". Does this mean, in relation to CONUS commercial air travel, that non-REAL ID driver's licenses will still be accepted at TSA checkpoints up to this date?

2) Without respect to future REAL ID requirements, there are other forms of identification TSA lists as acceptable. TSA states one of the acceptable forms of identification is "U.S. military ID (active duty or retired military and their dependents, and DoD civilians)". Is the Common Access Card (CAC) included in this statement as an acceptable form of identification to be used at a TSA checkpoint for CONUS commercial air travel?

Answers to these questions will alleviate much confusion many millions are experiencing, wondering when/if they will have to hold a REAL ID driver's license or if their CAC will suffice for CONUS air travel. You may also want to include these questions in their entirety as FAQs for that reason. Thank you.

Respectfully,

Hello my husband and I live in Minnesota and will be traveling domestically in April. Since Minnesota is a non-compliant state for the Real ID enforcement, we are hoping that an enhanced drivers license will allow us to travel and not be required to apply for a passport just to get on a plane to go to a different state.

There is so much information out there and it's all so confusing. We just want to be able to get on a plane domestically and not worry about being turned away when we get to the airport for lack of proper identification.

DHS requires visitors to present government-issued identification for access to its facilities. For visitors presenting a state-issued driver's license or identification card, DHS may only accept such documents if they are issued by states that are REAL ID compliant. If the state that issued your license is listed as noncompliant, please bring an alternate form of government-issued photo ID – such as a passport or Federal employee, military, or veteran identification card to facilitate access.

My question is specifically related to the states that don't meet the "Real ID" requirement. Missouri and Illinois currently do not meet that requirement and it is my understanding that their extension expires on Jan 10,2016. Will this effect an employer's ability to accept those state issued DL as a list B document?

Are driver authorization and driver privilege cards acceptable List B documents?

Yes. A driver authorization or driver privilege card issued by a State or outlying possession of the United States is an acceptable List B document, if it contains a photograph or identifying information such as name, date of birth, sex, height, color of eyes, and address. An employer must examine the document presented by its employee and determine whether it meets Form I-9 requirements. If the employer accepts a driver authorization or driver privilege card as a List B document, the employer must also examine a List C document establishing employment authorization.

Thank you for the feedback on the site.

There has been no change in the travel documents for domestic flights. DHS has not announced the schedule for REAL ID enforcement at airports. Any dates that you see in the press are speculation and not based on any statement made by DHS or TSA. You may continue to use your New York State driver's license for boarding aircraft for domestic travel. New York has an extension through, at least, October 10, 2016, meaning Federal agencies can continue to accept driver's license issued by New York. That extension is renewable if the state continues to demonstrate progress towards compliance.

The date of enforcement for Washington State refers to enforcement for purpose of accessing Federal facilities – not for boarding aircraft. I can understand the confusion and will refer your comment to the right people.

Subject: DHS webpages re: travel document changes

Dear Staff at the Office of State-Issued Identification Support:

Thanks to a friend who sent us relevant DHS links, members of my family have been alerted to DHS changes in travel documents required for domestic flights. I am unhappy that when I renewed my New York State drivers license in July 2015, NO ONE told me about the fact that a regular license could not be used for domestic travel after October 2016. I would have obtained an enhanced license then. I also found the webpage of "Public FAQs" very confusing, if not out of date. The links for commenting on that page and the other FAQ page (for states, which was even more confusing) do not work. I also got a pop-up asking me to complete a survey about the webpage but none of the choices fit my situation and it did not allow me to leave comments. This is not very meaningful in terms of providing feedback.

The "Public FAQ" page was "last published" on Dec. 28, 2015, but as seen below, the statement that one does not need a passport is confusing if not contradictory since there is no clarification about "when "120 days" of notice begins/began or when "enforcement at airports begins." There is no mention of or link to information that would update this statement, such as the interactive map at <http://www.dhs.gov/real-id-enforcement-brief#>. At that site, the information for Washington State says that starting Jan. 10, 2016, those residents "will be subject to enforcement." That's very different from what is provided on the FAQ page!

I hope some improvements can be made in access to information, so there will not be a lot of unhappy people, and chaos, at airports in the months to come. One simple fix would be updating the FAQ page.

Sincerely yours,

(b)(6)

Do I need a passport for domestic air travel starting January 2016?

A: No. DHS is in the process of scheduling plans for implementing REAL ID enforcement at airports. DHS will ensure that the traveling public has ample notice (at least, 120 days) before any changes are made that might affect their travel planning.

Until enforcement at the airports begins, the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept state-issued driver's licenses and identification cards from all states, as well other forms of acceptable identification listed on the TSA website.

Hello

We have a major meeting coming up at the end of the month in Las Vegas and the attendees come from all 50 states. Several states according to your website [<http://www.dhs.gov/real-id-enforcement-brief#>] are subject to enforcement starting Jan 16th.

Can you let me know if there are plans in the works to either grant an extension or to enforce the new regulations?

Thanks.

(b)(6)I really wish that you could reply to my original concern at the bottom of the page. Surely someone in your position in "Threat Prevention and Security" could come up with some type of remedy for my problem. I already have a letter from Homeland Security showing that I jumped through all their hoops, but have been told by security that this is only a form letter and of no use to them. It shows my Redress Control Number on it - 2087358, and I enter that on all reservations with all airlines, but nothing seems to help me get through. Do you have ANY suggestions for me? I sincerely hope you do.

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

You can find an acceptable list of ID's for airline travel from TSA here:

Subject: Real ID

I have been reading about this new program, and wonder how I can strengthen my ID's when flying. I am stopped every year at the airports. Doesn't seem to matter if it is a domestic flight or an international flight. It is to the point now that I am used to being stopped and expect it. I would just like to be able to travel without these inconveniences. I have already provided Homeland Security with all the information they require, and they always send me a letter. (copy attached). Even when I show this letter at the airports, I am still detained. Last year when entering the USA in Houston returning from our annual vacation in Puerto Vallarta, I was questioned about the letter, and told that all it was is a form letter and meaningless.

Is there ANYTHING that I can show that will get me through the security lines quicker, and allow me to print my boarding passes without going to the counter and being cross examined?

Two years ago, when detained in Houston, the officer I spoke with commented to me "Mr. Nelson - I bet we see more of you than your wife does" Very nice, but it still doesn't eliminate this extra step I must always take.

I would appreciate any help yo can provide me. We leave for Puerto Vallarta Mexico on January 6th. I have my letter, but wish I had more. I look forward to hearing from you with any suggestions you might have.

(b)(6)

I can also provide you with a copy of my passport, if you think that this would help.

Hello,

I am flying from Missouri to Georgia and back at the end of January and just heard that my Missouri Driver's License may not be accepted to board the flight. I do not have a passport or military ID. I am not sure what to do, because even if I do apply for a passport, I won't receive it in time.

What can I do so I am able to board the flight?

Thank You!

I have a DC drivers license that was issued in 2011 and does not expire until 2019. DC is a REAL ID-compliant state, and its DMV website says that those whose licenses expire in the future will not have to have a REAL ID license until expiration — in my case in 2019. I want to verify with DHS that my current DC license that was issued before REAL ID licenses were available will be valid in the future to enter federal buildings and at airports and that I do not have to get a new license prior to my 2019 expiration — since it was issued by a compliant state.

From the DC DMV website:

Is my current license or identification card still valid?

Yes. Your current driver license or identification card is valid until its expiration date and will be accepted for federal purposes (such as entering federal buildings and boarding airplanes). When you renew your existing credential (which may not expire until April 2022), you will then need to bring in your documents to revalidate your identity, Social Security number, and residency.

Thank you.

First of all, Thank you for your quick response!

From what I understand in your e-mail, we will be able to get on the flights to and from MN at the end of February 2016 because dates have not been set to enforce the Real ID at the airports yet and our regular driver's licenses will be accepted by TSA. Whew, thank you! I wasn't sure if we'd have time to get enhanced driver's licenses or passports .Now we don't have to be concerned with that.

I appreciate the links you sent as well. They are very helpful.

Have a good day!

Hello,

My family and I purchased tickets for flights going out of the Minneapolis airport in Feb 2016. I've been hearing concerns about the state of MN being non compliant with the Real ID standards. We still have the normal MN state issued drivers licenses.
Are we going to be able to fly out of MN and back in for our upcoming vacation? I'm not finding the date as to when the air travel restriction may go into place. I only find wording that says 2016, but not a specific date.

Thank you.

Subject: Minnesota REAL ID Question

Hello,

I was reading the FAQ for the REAL ID on your website and I am still not fully understanding, so I am hoping someone can help me. I have a "regular" Minnesota drivers license. With the new laws that will be in effect in 2016 regarding valid identification, is my drivers license still a valid form of identification for a flight to Texas at the end of February 2016, or will I need a passport or an enhanced ID for this flight?

Thank you for your help!

Dear DHS,

I noted that the DHS is going to start phased enforcement of the REAL ID Act (<http://www.dhs.gov/real-id-enforcement-brief#>).

My primary questions is: Can truck drivers without a REAL ID Act compliant state issued identification enter ports or other federally regulated areas overseen by TSA and/or DHS to make pick-ups or deliveries using non-compliant REAL ID Act state issued Commercial Driver's Licenses (CDL's).

Currently, some drivers get a Transportation Worker Identification Credential (TWIC) which allows them direct entry to ports or other federally controlled areas. However, some drivers (and my company) pay a TWIC certified driver service to strictly supervise and guide the truck drivers while in the port or other federally regulated area for their pickups or deliveries.

Further question: If a TWIC card was issued based on a non-compliant REAL ID Act issued state CDL, will that TWIC card be valid after the new phased enforcement of the REAL ID Act for entry into a port or federally regulated area?

Last question: Will services such as the one my company uses, where a TWIC certified driver service supervises a non-TWIC CDL driver while making deliveries or pickups at ports or other federally regulated areas, be allowed to accept non-compliant REAL ID Act state issued CDL's as proof of personal identification?

Any help you can give me answering these questions would be greatly appreciated. Thank you kindly for your attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

(b)(6)

Hello.

I'm seeking clarification as to how the Real ID will be effected at airports.

I understand the issues with some states needing to be in compliance by Jan 10. Does this mean that on Jan 10, air travelers from these states will be required to furnish other forms of ID such as passports?

I read something about 120 days enforcement. What exactly does this mean?

You stated in your email that the TSA will continue to accept driver's licenses from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. How will this affect travel on February 1, 2016?

Thank you,

Subject: Illinois Resident February Domestic Travel

Good morning,

My fiancé is an Illinois resident and will be flying domestically on February 1, 2016. My understanding is that beginning January 10, 2016, the State of Illinois will no longer be in compliance with the Real ID law. Due to the change in compliance status, will my fiancé need a passport for his domestic flight on February 1, 2016?

Your assistance is greatly appreciated.

Thank you,

Hello

My son is graduating boot camp in San Diego CA on March 4th. I live in Illinois. According to the information that I can find, I will not need a passport or a REAL ID card as of that date to fly to CA, but may need it to enter the federal facility, MCRD in San Diego?

Is this correct?

Please advise!

Hello,

I read today that there are problems with Virginia's compliance with the Real ID Act that will cause the federal government to stop recognizing Virginia driver's licenses in October of 2016. Before I contact the state legislator concerning this, I would like to know what things are lacking in Virginia's licensing program.

Thank you very much for any information provided concerning the program.

My husband and I will be traveling in mid January within the United States traveling from IL to FL. We have heard news reports that IL State Driver's Licenses are not considered TSA compliant and we will need another form of ID at the airports. I have an up to date passport but my husband needs to renew his, and his passport expired in 2004. So it is unlikely that his will be renewed in time although he is starting the process.

We have read that we would have received 120 days notice if this is affecting our travel plans, but we also see that on your website that IL has not received a continuance and as of January 10th it must conform by the new rules. We would appreciate some clarifications as to our options for appropriate ID come January 17th.

Thank you so much.

Subject: REAL ID State question and concerning your .gov website

Greetings

Im sending this email concerning on the REAL ID Act and something that has been bothering me because the website doesnt answer my question since the map with the states have a "#" null in the link if you click on the state, I live in Puerto Rico, the DTOP agency that deals with the identification cards have a very vague information on the REAL ID Act information concerning Puerto Rico and I wanted to know of the digital licenses id cards, the ones that are made of hard plastic and with a digital scan code in the back passes the real ID requirements since they say it was part of the process during 2008. And if the extension for the id given to Puerto Rico that ends in January 10, 2016 are the ones for the ID's that are not like the one i mentioned but for the ones that are provisional and made of laminated plastic that is easily bended??? My ID is the hard digital ones with the bar code in the rear that was issued in 2010.

Thanks in advance and have a nice day.

Just a suggestion, but why does the Real ID map on State status require that users roll over every state to figure out what the status is? Why not just color code the map and put a legend on it. Every state and territory falls into a uniform category:

Compliant

Under review — grace period to at least January 10, 2016

Under review — grace period to June 1, 2016

Under review — grace period to October 10, 2016

Non-compliant — federal officials may accept IDs

Non-compliant

This would allow a user to capture all the info he or she needs at a glance.

Hello, my family and I are from New Orleans, LA and we are traveling from New Orleans, Louisiana to Orlando, Florida towards the end of March of 2016 and I had a few concerns about the Real ID Act and our travels. I know the website says it will give ample amount of time to do what is necessary once notice is given, but it is hard to find enough sufficient information to ease my mind. My question is, will my family and I need another form of identification, besides our state issued ID's, to fly in March of 2016? Also, if we are required to get another form of identification will the Passport Card meet the requirements or will we have to get a Passport Book? I only ask because the price difference is quite large between the 2.

Thank you so much for taking the time to read my questions and concerns and I look forward to hearing back from someone soon on this matter. Have a great day!

Generally speaking, most facilities accept passports for identification purposes. In theory, a facility can choose not to accept passports, but I am not aware of any agency that has done so.

DHS requires visitors to present government-issued identification for access to its facilities. For visitors presenting a state-issued driver's license or identification card, DHS may only accept such documents if they are issued by states that are REAL ID compliant. If the state that issued your license is listed as noncompliant, please bring an alternate form of government-issued photo ID – such as a passport or Federal employee, military, or veteran identification card to facilitate access.

TSA will accept driver's licenses issued by all states (including Missouri) until further notice. It is our expectation to announce the timetable for TSA enforcement soon. There will be at least 120 days before any changes go into effect. The intent is to provide travelers with licenses from noncompliant states without an extension ample notice to incorporate changes into their travel planning.

To become compliant, a state would need to meet the standards published in a 2008 regulation. Missouri, to date, has chosen not to meet those standards.

I understand and regret any frustration that this situation has caused you. DHS is required by law to implement the REAL ID Act of 2005. We stand ready to work with Missouri on this matter at any time.

I'm trying to understand all the hubbub about Real ID. According to several reports, given that I'm a Missouri citizen, I will not be able to board any aircraft in 2016 without Real ID, which my MO driver's license doesn't qualify as. Yet, I cannot find any information on what qualifies as a Real ID if state issued ID does not, where to obtain a qualifying ID if state ID is not acceptable, or which state agency to contact to get this elusive Real ID.

It seems as though Congress had their head up their derriere when they dreamed up this crap shot piece of legislative toilet paper.

Thank you US government for making it next to impossible for me and my family, all US citizens born in the continental United States by US citizen parents born in the continental United States, to be able to travel by air inside MY COUNTRY while any foreign terrorist can board a plane from outside the US, fly in, kill hundreds, and no one asks for his REAL ID! REAL STUPID is what we have here.

Yes. TSA will accept driver's licenses issued by all states (including Illinois) until further notice. It is our expectation to announce the timetable for TSA enforcement soon. There will be at least 120 days before any changes go into effect. The intent is to provide travelers with licenses from noncompliant states without an extension ample notice to incorporate changes into their travel planning.

TSA does not require children under 18 to provide identification when traveling with a companion within the United States.

DHS requires visitors to present government-issued identification for access to its facilities. For visitors presenting a state-issued driver's license or identification card, DHS may only accept such documents if they are issued by states that are REAL ID compliant. If the state that issued your license is listed as noncompliant, please bring an alternate form of government-issued photo ID – such as a passport or Federal employee, military, or veteran identification card to facilitate access.

Subject: Traveling from Illinois to Florida 1/27/16--will IL State ID work at airport?

Hello,

I am traveling with my family to Florida (departing from Illinois on 1/27/16). Will our Illinois state ID be sufficient to board the flight (I also have a 12 year old daughter who doesn't have an id)? I heard something on the news that we may have to get passports? My trip is 4 weeks away and that leaves me no time.

Thank you,

Subject: Minnesota Real ID Non-Compliance

Hello,

I am a current resident of Minnesota with valid Minnesota drivers license. Minnesota has failed to comply with the US Government's Real ID Act and an extension to become compliant, filed by Governor Mark Dayton, was just rejected by DHS. I will be flying from Minneapolis Minnesota to Orlando Florida in the middle of January 2016 (after the Act goes into effect).

According to the TSA's website "Driver's licenses or other state photo identity cards issued by Department of Motor Vehicles" are valid for air travel". There is no addendum referencing the Real ID Act or states that may or may not be in compliance with the Act. Your website states "DHS is in the process of scheduling plans for implementing REAL ID enforcement at airports. DHS will ensure that the traveling public has ample notice (at least, 120 days) before any changes are made that might affect their travel planning." Your website then states "Until otherwise announced, the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft."

I have searched your website and I was unable to find any alerts, statements, or memos stating DHS has notified the public of enforcement of the Act. I would like confirmation that DHS has not yet notified the public that the TSA will be enforcing the Real ID Act during my travel time (January 17-January 27 2016), and thus my current and valid Minnesota driver's license will be permitted as an acceptable form of ID for air travel.

Thank you in advance to prompt attention to my inquiry.

Sincerely,

While ultimately each facility will establish what alternate IDs or procedures to make available to visitors, we have provided all Federal agencies with the following guidance to promote consistent access control policies and provide options to the public to minimize impact.

Hello,
 I work for Overhead Door of Kansas City. Our facility is located in Kansas, but a large number of our commercial technicians live in and work in Missouri. We heard the news today that Missouri Driver's licenses will no longer be accepted at Federal facilities beginning January 10th. I contacted the DMV Jefferson City, to ask if they would start issuing ID that met the REAL ID criteria, and they didn't have an answer for me.

Is there somewhere we can go, or a way that our employees that live in Missouri can get an ID that we can use at federal facilities?

I have been reading about this new program, and wonder how I can strengthen my ID's when flying. I am stopped every year at the airports. Doesn't seem to matter if it is a domestic flight or an international flight. It is to the point now that I am used to being stopped and expect it. I would just like to be able to travel without these inconveniences. I have already provided Homeland Security with all the information they require, and they always send me a letter. (copy attached). Even when I show this letter at the airports, I am still detained. Last year when entering the USA in Houston returning from our annual vacation in Puerto Vallarta, I was questioned about the letter, and told that all it was is a form letter and meaningless.

Is there ANYTHING that I can show that will get me through the security lines quicker, and allow me to print my boarding passes without going to the counter and being cross examined?

Two years ago, when detained in Houston, the officer I spoke with commented to me "Mr. Nelson - I bet we see more of you than your wife does" Very nice, but it still doesn't eliminate this extra step I must always take.

I would appreciate any help yo can provide me. We leave for Puerto Vallarta Mexico on January 6th. I have my letter, but wish I had more. I look forward to hearing from you with any suggestions you might have.

I can also provide you with a copy of my passport, if you think that this would help.

Me and my wife are from Minnesota and our planning our honeymoon in Hawaii in March of 2016. From what I have heard our driver license may not be adequate when flying commercially because of the Real ID. Has there been an affective date for this announced as to when this will be an issue for us. Any information would be helpful.

Thank you,

Sir/Ma'am,

Our agency, the International Boundary and Water Commission (USIBWC), is located in El Paso, Texas and we are a Federal agency. We operate a PIV credentialing Center at our Headquarters and many of the Federal employees working in New Mexico come to our facility to obtain a PIV card. I have a few of questions that I would like to ask and any information would be greatly appreciate. 1) Will DHS publish official details/guidance on which states do not comply with the REAL ID Act? 2) When would agencies would begin declining the use of the driver's licenses for entry into Federal facilities? 3) How will this effect Federal employees working in New Mexico if they try to use the NM driver's license as the primary ID to obtain a PIV card? Again, any information would be greatly appreciated.

Dear Sir or Madam,

In regards to certain states being required to have residents have a passport to fly within the continental United States, how does that affected a military member and their family? How would they go about getting one if the service member and his or her family doesn't currently live in that state?

I need to be able to provide my travelers some information on what is happening with the ID's that will or will not be accepted for domestic travel.

Most of my travelers hold IL ID's and I am unsure if there is a specific rule as to when the ID was issued that makes it valid or if after 1/10/16, my travelers will require a second form of ID or a Passport. How will IL Driver's license holders be notified if the extension under review is extended?

Any more detailed info that you can provide would be so helpful.

Hello

I've read information on your website and have a question as I'm from a non-compliant State (Minnesota). We are traveling to California in January and the process for an enhanced driver's license in MN takes at least 4-6 weeks due to the questionnaire processing.

What form of ID is needed to board a domestic flight after 1/1/16?

Thanks

I will be traveling from Minnesota to Texas with my elderly parents via airplane flight, leaving in December 2015, and returning January 2016.

We are from Minnesota and my parents do not have any sort of enhanced driver's license. The rest of us all have passports.

Will they be able to board the airplane for the return flight? What do we need to do before we leave?

Can you please tell me the date to which Non-compliant states (aka Minnesota) will have to present more than 1 photo ID (such as a driver's license & passport) in order to board aircraft.

I see on your website Minnesota seems to be the only non-compliant state, though they will accept the new enhanced Driver's License, alternate forms of ID will need to be presented. Is that correct?

"Individuals holding licenses from noncompliant jurisdictions will need to follow alternative access control procedures for purposes covered by the Act. (See Section A of the sidebar). As described below, enforcement for boarding aircraft will occur no sooner than 2016."

*Can you direct me to this section A of the sidebar?

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

You can find an acceptable list of ID's for airline travel from TSA here:

<http://www.tsa.gov/traveler-information/acceptable-ids>

If a child is younger than 18, they are not required to have ID to travel. They'll just need their boarding pass.

Our state legislature has dragged their feet thus far n will not b discussing the Real ID dilemma until early 2016 when they have their 30-days session.

Our Tribal Enrollment office issues ID's for enrolled tribal members; the ID's use to b issued by the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) but with our 638 program, we have taken over that task. The ID's r also technically US Federal property so one would come to the conclusion that they meet the Real ID requirement. Your expeditious reply would b greatly appreciated by all Federally recognized tribes in the USA.

I've been trying hard to find the actual implementation date/deadline, and only find articles about our Governor requesting an extension. Even your website seems to vaguely mention "sometime in 2016".

If you can make this clear, it would really help us be able to decide if we can travel or not. It would be disastrous to not be able to return home.

Dear (b)(6)

The info that I am reading is so over worded that it contradicts everything it says. Can you simply tell me if we will be able to use our Minnesota drivers license as a ID to board the plane in January 2016. We fly out Jan10-20th. Will the Real ID be in effect?

Thank You,

I have a question regarding the Real ID inforcement.

My mom will be flying to Florida from Minnestoa on 12/29/15 and returning sometime in January 2016.

She just heard about this new law so she applied for a passport. It can take 6-8 weeks to receive the passport in the mail.

Her other option is getting an enhanced driver's license. That can also take 6-8 weeks to arrive in the mail. She may not receive her passport or her new enhanced driver's license by the time she leaves to FL.

I have done research trying to find the the exaet date of when this new Real ID will be inforeed. I just keep finding "Not before 2016".

My question is this: My mom will have no problem flying to FL with her regular driver's license. BUT she will be flying back to MN in 2016. She is very worried. I am wondering if you can tell me if there's a possibility she will not be able to fly back to MN from FL in 2016.

Thank you.

Will travelers with a Minnesota drivers license (MN does not have Real ID licenses yet) travelling within the U.S. (specifically to Florida) be allowed through security without a passport through January 20, 2016?

My husband and I, as well as a group of college dancers (over 18) are travelling to Florida from Minnesota with MN drivers licenses - many don't have passports. The ambiguous statement "not before 2016" with regards to Real ID enforcement is, to say the least, unsettling. I realize your FAQ page states that the public will have ample notice before any changes, but how are we to be informed of this "ample notice"... the media? The problem is, I have heard and continue to hear conflicting information through legit media and print outlets, so how to know what's accurate? How do we know if and when your website is updated?

Thank you so much for taking the time to answer my questions.

But the DHS website is ambiguous - it seems to imply that since I come from a compliant state, I DO need a Real ID by January 22, 2018. Or does the website mean that since I simply LIVE in a compliant state, it is ok to keep using my non-federal driver's license until it actually expires?

Thank you for reply.
I'm not sure it's clear.
Would you mind clarifying:

I don't have a passport on me because it's being held at the moment for visa purposes.
Is a Spanish driving license together with a Spanish ID card enough to travel domestically?

Will I be refused travel in these circumstances?

My name is (b)(6) and I'm from Puerto Rico. Today I went to the Transportation Department of my city to get an ID. They still don't have the REAL ID format, so I got another one. The problem is that it says in res letters 'NOT FOR REAL ID PURPOSES'.

My question is, can I still use that ID to travel to a USA state? Will I have problems with TSA? I need to travel on July.

Thanks!

While we have set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports this will not begin until Jan. 22, 2018. A retired military ID can be used as an alternative to a non-compliant REAL ID.

Thanks for the response. I've contacted my state (Oklahoma), but haven't heard back. Their website says to contact you.

I realize the cdl is different, but while I'm renewing it (there's a tsa security check involved), is there any way I can also update to a realID?

I expect to have to travel to the Supreme Court late October and am trying to make it a smooth trip since I am already stressed about arguing in front of the court.

Thanks!

Hello,

I am an American citizen that has been living abroad since 2010, and I plan on living abroad for the foreseeable future. My state-issued driver's license (from Colorado) expired about two years ago, I don't have an address in the U.S., I don't keep in regular contact with any family in the U.S., and I don't believe any of my family members still reside in Colorado. At some point in the future, I would like to visit the U.S., but I don't have a valid state-issued ID, much less a REAL ID compliant one. Especially after October 1, 2020 when REAL ID compliant identification becomes mandatory, what should I do? How and where can I get a REAL ID compliant ID?

Thank you in advance for your help.

Sincerely,

The DMV equivalent agency in Puerto Rico, known as CESCO, has begun issuing Real ID drivers license since April 2016.

Since my license was up for renovation {June 11}, yesterday May 27 I decided to opt for Real ID paying the required fees and bringing all the necessary documents as requested by the agency. At the Carolina branch after I was photographed for the new license, I was told that I did not qualify for a Real ID license because of the fact that I was born in the U.S. (NY). I was told that Puerto Rico was not issuing Real ID licenses for any residents born in U.S. I received instead a look alike drivers ID that reads in red lettering NOT FOR REAL ID PURPOSES,

I protested that this did not made any sense and I was urged to apply for a passport instead. The principal reasons I was interested in the new license were:

1. I would not have to reapply for a new license before its expiration in June 11, 2022 (6 years) taking into mind the October 2020 compliance deadline.
2. The Real ID is more secure against fraud and identity theft. It is also more convenient for travel and identification purposes in the states -no need for extra card or paperwork.

I called the agency's (CESCO) hotline 787-294-2424 and they confirmed this policy stating that the Real ID licenses issued in Puerto Rico were for foreign born or those born on the island but not for those born in the U.S. They could not or would not explain the reason why. Coincidentally all island government agencies are closed till Tuesday.

I understand that the intent of Real ID is to afford protection and security for the U.S. and its citizens. I would never have guessed that its implementation in a territory like Puerto Rico would result in a discriminatory measure affecting a percentage of people that it was suppose to serve, namely those citizens born in the U.S. 50 states.

I would very much appreciate an investigation or any clarification or explanation of this seemingly bizarre policy.

I thank you for shedding any light into this matter.

Hi,

I can't find my question answered in any of the FAQs on your site, so apologies if I missed it somehow.

It appears that in 2018 sometime, everyone will need a "Real ID" to fly on commercial flights.

I live in WA and have an enhanced driver's license. I see that WA is not in compliance, and your website says TSA may accept the enhanced D.L., but what I don't see -- is the enhanced DL considered a "real id" ?

And, since I have this type, what will I need to do before 2018 if my DL is not considered "real ID"?

Thx

Real ID Facts

10/24/2015

- Contrary to recent news reports, air travel will NOT be impacted January 1, 2016
 - A Louisiana driver's license or identification card will still be accepted as identification to board an aircraft until such time the Federal Government announces an enforcement date
 - At the request of Colonel Edmonson, the Department of Homeland Security has granted an extension through October 10, 2016 for implementation of the Real ID Act of 2005. Colonel Edmonson's request, cited Louisiana driver's license and identification card already complies with the majority of Real ID requirements

- Real ID Phased Enforcement Description and Schedule

Phase	Location	Enforcement Date
Phase 1	Restricted areas (i.e., areas accessible by agency personnel, contractors, and their guests) for DHS headquarters in Washington	April 21, 2014
Phase 2	Restricted areas for all Federal facilities & nuclear power plants	July 21, 2014
Phase 3	Semi-restricted areas (i.e., areas available to the general public but subject to ID-based access control) for most Federal facilities – Access to Federal facilities will continue to be allowed for purposes of applying for or receiving Federal benefits	January 19, 2015
3a	Facility Security Levels 1 and 2	January 19, 2015
3b	Facility Security Levels 3, 4, and 5, and military facilities	October 10, 2015
Phase 4	Boarding federally regulated commercial aircraft A driver's license or identification card from a noncompliant state may only be used in conjunction with a second form of ID for boarding federally regulated commercial aircraft	No sooner than 2016

- Limitations
- Access for activities directly relating to safety and health or life preserving services, to law enforcement, and to constitutionally protected activities, including legal and investigative proceedings will not be affected. Existing agency policies will still apply.
- The Act does not require individuals to present identification where it is not currently required to access a Federal facility (such as to enter the public areas of the Smithsonian) nor does it prohibit an agency from accepting other forms of identity documents other than documents from non-compliant states (such as a U.S. passport or passport card).
- The Act's prohibitions do not affect other uses of driver's licenses or identification cards – including licenses and cards from noncompliant states – unrelated to official purposes as defined in the Act. For example, the Act does not apply to voting, registering to vote, or for applying for or receiving Federal benefits.
- For more information, please contact the DHS Office of State-Issued Identification Support at osiis@hq.dhs.gov.

What you are referencing is actually the REAL ID Act itself. The requirements for the states are contained in the REAL ID regulation 6 CFR Part 37. Below I attached the specific sections of 6 CFR Part 37 that deals with your question. The basic answer is that Arizona can comply with your request and issued a REAL ID license if they have the authority to do so under Arizona law. The REAL ID regulation allows them to do this.

§ 37.11 Application and documents the applicant must provide.

(f) Documents demonstrating address of principal residence. To document the address of principal residence, a person must present at least two documents of the State's choice that include the individual's name and principal residence. A street address is required except as provided in § 37.17(f) of this part.

(i) States are not required to comply with these requirements when issuing REAL ID driver's licenses or identification cards in support of Federal, State, or local criminal justice agencies or other programs that require special licensing or identification to safeguard persons or in support of their other official duties. As directed by appropriate officials of these Federal, State, or local agencies, States should take sufficient steps to safeguard the identities of such persons. Driver's licenses and identification cards issued in support of Federal, State, or local criminal justice agencies or programs that require special licensing or identification to safeguard persons or in support of their other official duties shall not be distinguishable from other REAL ID licenses or identification cards issued by the State.

§ 37.17 Requirements for the surface of the driver's license or identification card.

(f) Address of principal residence, except an alternative address may be displayed for:

- (1) Individuals for whom a State law, regulation, or DMV procedure permits display of an alternative address, or
- (2) Individuals who satisfy any of the following:
 - (i) If the individual is enrolled in a State address confidentiality program which allows victims of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, stalking, or a severe form of trafficking, to keep, obtain, and use alternative addresses; and provides that the addresses of such persons must be kept confidential, or other similar program;
 - (ii) If the individual's address is entitled to be suppressed under State or Federal law or suppressed by a court order including an administrative order issued by a State or Federal court; or
 - (iii) If the individual is protected from disclosure of information pursuant to section 384 of the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996.

Hello (b)(6) Dept. of Homeland Security:

Thank you for sir for your time and response. I can see where the State of Arizona will say It is NOT up to them how to implement the REAL ID because the guidelines are found in Federal Law Under Title II, H.R.1268, Section 202 (a) (6). Again which says "The Person's Address of Principle Residence."

I will be contacting our state Department of Transportation director who oversees the Motor Vehicle Division. I will forward your below listed comments for his consideration, but I think it will fall on deaf ears since Federal Law trumps State Law in spite of what you have written.

Do you have any suggestions as to what I might additionally offer in my response to him to consider the safety of those of us with Legally Redacted information from using our home address on the REAL ID other than what you have written? Otherwise, I think you have made it perfectly clear it is up to the State of Arizona as how they wish to proceed with certain aspects on the issuance of REAL ID.

Sincerely,

REAL ID only establishes minimum security standards for the issuance of compliant driver's licenses and identification cards. How a state chooses to implement them is up to the states. The validity period of a compliant document and the requirements for its issuance is up to the state as long as it complies with the REAL ID regulation. Compliant licenses can only be issued for a validity period not to exceed 8 years. ~~States are not required to comply with these requirements when issuing REAL ID driver's license or~~ identification cards in support of Federal, State, or local criminal justice agencies or other programs that require special licensing or identification to safeguard persons or in support of their other official duties. Subject: REAL I.D. security concerns....

April 29, 2016

Dear DHS:

Today I applied for and received my REAL I.D. at my local MVD here in Arizona. Unfortunately for me during the process, I was informed only the address of the residence I live in could go on the new I.D. The MVD supervisor said this was Federal Law and she could not do anything about it.

Here in Arizona certain people like myself that are or were in law enforcement can have their personal information "redacted" by the courts... BY LAW. Mine has been redacted. This includes my driver license, residence, personal property and voters I.D. I have always used a UPS box to help layer security for my privacy from bad guys.

Now, it appears because of the way the REAL I.D. Act – Title II; H.R. 1268; Section 202 (a) (6) was written and is interpreted, anyone who now has cause to look at my Arizona driver license can see where my actual residence is. Not good! This certainly brings up and jeopardizes my safety and other law enforcement persons like me. "The Person's Address of Principle Residence" is the way DHS has worded this requirement. Not to be over critical, but did DHS think this one through before writing it this way? Seems to me there should obviously be an "exemption" here for persons like me. I would greatly appreciate you following up on this and if possible I would like to get a re-issue of my Arizona REAL I.D. driver license showing my mailing address rather than the home address my children and I live in.

I actually read through the DHS site on the REAL I.D. Act, but could not find the answers to the following questions:

1. How long is the REAL I.D. good for? Does it expires?
2. If and when the REAL I.D. expires and I have to get a new one, do I have to go through the entire documentation process again, or will I already be in the system and can bypass it?

An email response would be appreciated so I can retain your answers.

Sincerely,

Hello,

I was looking at the information on your website pertaining to the dates when enforcement of the REAL ID act is set to take effect. But I seem to have come across a discrepancy.

On your site <https://www.dhs.gov/real-id-enforcement-brief>, it says the effective date for these changes is 2016. I was under the impression it was either 2018 or 2020 (depending on the state or the exemption granted).

Are some states required to be in compliance by this year?

Hi:

I have an elderly mother who will be flying this coming August. According the REAL ID, NH has an extension to 6/1/16. Will she be able to fly without a passport? I am concerned that if a passport will be required, she won't be able to get it in time.

Please advise.

Does this completely replace a drivers license or an addition to it?

Will this be mandatory at any point just to fly somewhere in US?

Subject: RE: Question on using a 'suffix' in your legal name

Good Afternoon,

Although I have asked quite a few questions surrounding TSA/ TSA Pre ✓™, I was asked for a bit more clarification. Based on the below excerpt from The TSA Blog; would the information below also include the Suffix (ie. Jr. Sr. II, IV, etc.) in a traveler's name even though it's not 'spelled' out?

Lastly, for all of you using TSA Pre ✓™, it's very important you enter the correct info when booking your flight or you may not get selected for expedited screening.

While some eligible passengers are randomly excluded from expedited screening in TSA Pre ✓™ lanes, we were surprised to learn that some U.S. and Canadian citizens who are enrolled in a U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) trusted traveler program have been excluded because of errors made in entering information when they book their reservation. On a given day, some have missed out on expedited screening because of a few simple errors.

A few of the basic reasons are as follows:

- • * Entered the incorrect Membership Number / PASSID (also known as your known traveler number or trusted traveler number), or entered it in the wrong field when making their airline reservation online.
- • * Entered a date of birth (DOB) when making their reservation that did not match the DOB they provided to CBP for Global Entry or another CBP trusted traveler program.
- • * *Didn't enter their full name: first, middle and last name. These should match:

What the site is stating is that if the individual has identification or documentation (license, passport) with a suffix, it must be displayed on the ticket.

If the identification does not have it, then the boarding pass should not have it.

The name of the individual on the identification and boarding pass will need to match.

(b)(6)

I was guided to this site for the information regarding names and suffix use:
<http://blog.tsa.gov/2009/05/whats-in-name.html>

If you plan to present a driver's license, purchase tickets using your name as it appears on your driver's license. If you plan to present a passport, purchase tickets using the name that appears on your passport. (Here is a list of acceptable forms of identification.)

But rest assured, the system will be pretty flexible. For the near future, small differences between ID and reservation information, such as the use of a middle initial instead of a full middle name or no middle name/initial at all, should not cause a problem for the passenger.

Secure Flight is a multi-phase program developed by DHS that matches passenger information against federal government watch lists for domestic and international flights. Before Secure Flight, airlines themselves were responsible for matching passenger information to the federal watch list. As Secure Flight is implemented, TSA will begin to assume responsibility for the security program.

Here is the information regarding the EDL's: <https://www.dhs.gov/real-id-public-faqs>

Will a federal agency accept my Enhanced Driver's License?

Yes. State Enhanced Driver's Licenses (EDLs) designated as acceptable border-crossing documents by DHS and Hemisphere Travel Initiative are acceptable for official federal purposes such as accessing a Federal facility or boarding a commercial aircraft. Individual agency policies may still apply. Michigan, Minnesota, New York, Vermont, and Washington are the only states that currently issue EDLs. For more information on EDLs, please go to <https://www.dhs.gov/enhanced-driver-licenses>.

I am just hearing about and trying to learn about this Real ID... here is my question...
According to information online:

"Starting January 22, 2018, Passengers who have licenses issued by a state that is compliant or that has an extension to become compliant with REAL ID requirements may continue to use their licenses as usual."

I live in Wisconsin (a compliant state), so does this mean after January 22, 2018, I can continue to use my regular state Driver's License even though it is not yet a "REAL ID"? My license is not due for renewal until November 2020, so I was hoping I wouldn't have to renew early. Although I realize after October 2020 the REAL ID is required for travel.

I am further concerned b/c my 16-year-old daughter just got her license and although we brought her social security card with (as requested) they never asked to see it and now we see her new license in the mail is not a REAL ID. :(

Thank you for your time.

Thank you for the quick response.

So, just to be clear, in case I don't have my passport by then, will my Driver's License be enough to board a plane before Jan 2018 (even though my Driver's License says: Not Valid for Federal Identification)?

Thank you in advance,

(b)(6)

Hi,

My name is (b)(6) and I just recently found out through my parents that starting this year if traveling domestically I need to show some other form of identification other than my license if the state I live in is not compliant with the REAL ID policy. I am not quiet worried about this since I am a US citizen, but my boyfriend is not. My boyfriend and I are planning to travel to Hawaii possibly if not somewhere else, but the thing is my boyfriend has is the passport from the country he was born in. Can he use a passport for another country to travel domestically without penalty?

Best,

To whom it may concern:

I am copying this address on a complaint that was submitted to TSA regarding refusal of TSA agents in SLC to accept a valid state issued government identification document, because they considered it to be invalid because it was "interim" and not a laminated driver's license. The State of Georgia considers it valid for all purposes, and refusal to accept this form of ID is contrary to all published information on the TSA website.

Please review submission below and confirm DHS policy regarding interim state issued driver's licenses.

Where did this happen? UTAH - SLC - Salt Lake City International

Date: Wed, 2016-03-16

Approximate Time: 08:00

Airline & Flight Number:

Checkpoint/Area of Airport: Pre-check line

Name of TSA employee (if known):

Please provide a description of your inquiry/comment.: TSA refused to accept Georgia interim driver's license, which is an official government issued document which includes a photo ID and other security features. Agent asked for and reviewed a secondary ID matching the interim license. Due to presenting the interim license (plus secondary ID) Agent did not allow me to enter Pre-Check (for which I qualified per boarding pass), instead required me to enter standard screening, including wave scanning. After standard screening, agent required an enhanced pat down, hand inspection of luggage and explosive detection. Refusal to accept an interim license is contrary to all published TSA reports, and illogical, since interim licenses are a result of Georgia's compliance with the Real ID requirements (central, secure issuing of permanent licenses).

My roommate and I disagree: can you help?

She says everyone who enters the USA - legally - as a visitor who plans to stay - that is not just for a short vacation - must have some sort of ID card and that the Feds will do the issuing.

I don't believe her, but I read that a 2005 REAL-ID act DOES require, by 2020, that all air travelers have either a state driver's license, or similar state ID card, or some other form of qualifying identification. or they can be turned away from boarding the aircraft.

This may be true but it is a long way from saying the government will be issuing a "national" kind of ID card. So if a person plans to apply for US citizenship but has no plans to fly anywhere, he won't be required to carry any US ID card, right? He MAY have to carry his national passport, also right? And he MIGHT be able to get a state driver's license or state ID card, but it won't be mandatory....right?

But I have read that right now, there are thousands of aliens in the US - legally - but past any supposed right of staying here. IS there a maximum-allowed stay for an alien? And if so, isn't it true that you the government have no idea where these thousands are, because they don't check in anywhere, if they are even required to?

I appreciate your clarification of this minor argument. Thanks for your time.

Subject: NH Drivers Licenses as ID for Travel

I believe I am reading the FAQ page correctly, but I wanted to double check. My husband and I are residents of NH and have NH licenses. He travels frequently for his job, flying all over the United States (not international).

It is my understanding that NH has been granted an extension until June 1, 2016, but we can continue to fly using our NH licenses without needing additional identification until January 22, 2018.

Is this correct?

Thank you for your assistance.

Hello

I was recently on your website to gather more information regarding Real ID's for domestic travel

I did read that minors are not required to have a Real ID if traveling with a companion, but what about if they are traveling unaccompanied?

My son is 13, and travels from NY to CA on his school breaks. His father escorts him through security as our son is Autistic (high functioning).

So is it still ok that my son not have a Real ID? What about his father that is only escorting him thru security, but NOT flying?

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

Only a passport/passport card and EDL are sufficient to cross the border to Canada. There is no Federal REAL ID, only requirements that states meet to comply with the law.

I just have a simple question. My DMV says that real I'd is not required until 2020 and your sight says now. I am planning on flying this summer and need to know if I have to make a trip to the dmv for a new ID. I'm flying from Nevada to Ohio. What do I need to do??? I checked your website but it was not helpful in the least. Thank you for your time.

Type:	Note

We have from time to time used a "Concealed Carry License" issued by the State of Kansas as a valid form of state-issued picture i.d. It has always been accepted without question. I believe it is issued by the State Attorney General, it resembles a KS driver's license, contains the same information as a driver's license (date-of-birth, sex, height, weight, date of issue, date of expiration) and carries the signatures of the Director of Vehicles and the Secretary of Revenue. It was obtained after an extensive background check so is probably more secure than a regular driver's license.

Recently, the TSA at the Aspen Airport denied the use of the Concealed Carry License. (Needless to say, the individual was not carrying a weapon.) They said it is not a valid form of identification. Kansas is compliant with the REAL ID Act. We did not have another form of identification, so they finally accepted a credit card (which seems odd) but performed an invasive body search, including questions about whether it was "that time of the month" for the female passenger.

Can you clarify whether a concealed carry license issued by a state is an acceptable form of picture i.d.? If it is not, why not? And what should we do if this happens again? (We knew that we should not argue with the TSA agent, but is there anything that can be done when you are being denied boarding access?)

Is a real ID required to apply for a US Passport? I applied for a passport and presented my state (WV)issued drivers license with the application. I was later contacted by the passport office stating that my drivers license was insufficient for passport purposes due to the fact that it states "not for federal identification." The travel.state.gov site lists primary identification as a fully valid drivers license and does not specify if it must be a Real ID. It is my understanding that my current drivers license should be sufficient as primary identification for the passport application. Can this please be clarified?

Hi,

What is the difference between the REAL ID and the MN Enhanced ID?

I am taking a group of people to Las Vegas in March 2016, leaving from MSP airport. We plan on getting a MN Enhanced Drivers License next month. Then I was reading the article from Homeland Security and came across this statement:

"+ Federal officials MAY continue to accept Enhanced Driver's Licenses from these states" for Minnesota.

Is the Enhanced ID in MN different than the "REAL ID"?
When will we know what we need to ensure this trip?

Any information would be helpful.

Subject:	Real ID act URGENT questions
Type:	Note

Good morning. I have some questions about this. I live in Washington State. On your webpage here: <http://www.dhs.gov/real-id-enforcement-brief>, you have us listed as: # Under review for an extension renewal, allowing Federal agencies to accept driver's licenses from these states, until at least January 10, 2016 under a grace period.

My questions:

1. • 1. What does this mean for those of us traveling in December and returning in January? If I am on a flight that leaves December 26 and returns January 15, can I use my regular Washington Drivers License for both? If not, what do I use?
2. • 2. What about children, and children traveling as unaccompanied minors? Do they have to have ID, and if so, what are the requirements for that ID both pre and post implementation? Specifically, my granddaughter, who is 6, is traveling as an unaccompanied minor, leaving on December 26 and returning on January 2, flying out of Portland, Oregon into St. Louis.
 1. • 1. What ID does her mother need to show for her when she brings her to the airport?
 2. • 2. What ID does the father have to show for her when he takes her back in January?
 3. • 3. Does she have to carry some form of ID on her person during the flight, and if so, what is that ID?
 4. • 4. She will again be traveling in April, as well as this summer. I need to know what types of ID are accepted for her, both if Washington comes in compliance with this act and if they don't, as well as whether she has to have that ID on her person or if it is just shown at the airport when she's dropped off.
 5. • 5. For her upcoming flight, we live in Washington, but we fly out of Portland, OR. Are all the airports aware of these requirements? It seems to me that every time I go to a different airport, the airlines where I check in interpret your laws differently, and even at security, I've been asked for different things at different airports.

Thanks for your speedy response. We need to get things ordered if she has to have a passport, etc.

Sincerely,

(b)(6)

Dear (b)(6)

It depends upon the state issuing your driver's license or identification card.

The REAL ID Act only applies to driver's licenses and identification cards issued by states that are not meeting the Federal standards and have not been granted an extension by DHS. As of the moment, only licenses issued by Minnesota and American Samoa are subject to REAL ID enforcement. As of January 10, licenses issued by New Mexico and Washington may also be subject to REAL ID enforcement.

Military bases decide what identification documents are required to get on base. Please consult with the base in advance.

If you have any additional questions please let us know.

Thanks,

Dear (b)(6)

As of the moment, there are two jurisdictions that do not have an extension and are subject to REAL ID enforcement – Minnesota and American Samoa.

Two states have been denied an extension for 2016 -- New Mexico and Washington State. Licenses and identification cards issued by these states may not be accepted for entry into nuclear power plants or accessing Federal facilities beginning January 10, 2016.

Extensions are issued at the discretion of the Secretary of Homeland Security. There is no appeal process. However, states without extensions can and do communicate with DHS and can receive an extension if they provide DHS with adequate justification for noncompliance.

If you have any additional questions please let us know.

Hi,

I am taking a group of people to Las Vegas in March 2016, leaving from MSP airport. We plan on getting an Enhanced Drivers License next month. Then I was reading the article from Homeland Security and came across this statement "+ Federal officials MAY continue to accept Enhanced Driver's Licenses from these states" for Minnesota. Is the Enhanced ID in MN different than the "REAL ID" that is in process. When will we know what we need to ensure this trip?

Any information would be helpful.

Thank You

Dear (b)(6)

A DHS-designated Enhanced Driver's License Issued to U.S. citizens resident in the states of Michigan, Minnesota, New York, Vermont, and Washington is acceptable identification at airport checkpoints. See <https://www.tsa.gov/travel/security-screening/identification>.

Minnesota is a noncompliant state that has not been granted an extension by DHS. Minnesota non-EDL driver's licenses and identification cards are not acceptable for entering nuclear power plants or accessing Federal facilities.

If you have any additional questions please let us know.

REAL ID Act

"States and other jurisdictions have made significant progress in enhancing the security of their licenses over the last number of years. As a result, approximately 70-80% of all U.S. drivers hold licenses from jurisdictions: (1) determined to meet the Act's standards; or (2) that have received extensions. Individuals holding driver's licenses or identification cards from these jurisdiction may continue to use them as before".

Minnesota is noncompliant, but Federal officials may continue to accept Enhanced Driver's Licenses from these states. How long will the Federal officials accept the Minnesota class D and CDL?

Thank you.

Subject: ? on Real ID versus Global Entry

Hello:

We have been made aware of the new policy for travelers for 2016 with a State of Minnesota issued Driver's License and that a valid passport will be needed when traveling domestically, etc., unless they have the "Real ID" card. My question is whether Global Entry would be acceptable as well rather than the Real ID card?

Kind regards,

Dear (b)(6)

The DHS website contains the latest information.

Currently only Minnesota and American Samoa are subject to enforcement at nuclear power plants and Federal facilities.

Arizona, New York, and Louisiana have received extensions through October 2016. New Hampshire has received an extension through June 2016. DHS has not made a final determination on the status of Minnesota for 2016.

As indicated on the website, the status of several states is under review. Washington State and New Mexico have not received extensions for 2016 and enforcement at nuclear power plants and Federal facilities is scheduled to begin on January 10, 2016.

DHS has not yet announced the date for REAL ID enforcement at commercial airports. DHS has committed to making that announcement in 2015 and to providing travelers with at least four months advance warning before implementation.

Hello,

Could you please help me find out which states are currently non-compliant according to the Real ID Act?

I supervise the Travel Desk for Williams Lea Tag. We have office all across the county. We want to be able to provide our employees with accurate information and prepare them for travel after January 1, 2016.

A recent article listed 5 non-compliant states – Arizona, New Hampshire, New York, Minnesota and Louisiana. Another article omitted Arizona. When I checked the Dept of Homeland Security website, they listed more than half of the states having been granted an extension of varying lengths.

Could you please provide an updated state listing, and also are there any less expensive alternatives to obtaining a passport for all of our domestic travelers?

Dear (b)(6)

The information provided by TSA is accurate.

DHS has not yet announced the date for REAL ID enforcement at commercial airports. DHS has committed to making that announcement in 2015 and to providing travelers with at least four months advance warning before implementation.

Today is November 4, 2015.

Given those commitments, it is highly unlikely that REAL ID enforcement at commercial airports will begin before March 2016.

Washington has denied an additional extension to the State of Washington and enforcement at nuclear power plants and Federal facilities is scheduled to begin on January 10, 2016.

If you have any additional questions please let us know.

Hello,

I am a US citizen who will be traveling domestically with my husband in Feb 2016. Seattle to Hawaii. My husband is not a US citizen and we have not yet been processed for immigration. He has a wa state driver license.

I spoke with TSA and they informed me that I will be notified of the real ID act being effective at least 120 days before its due to start. Is that accurate information? Because what im reading online for Homeland security is that if # sign is next to your state is it under review for extension until January 2016.

The information I got from the TSA department was atleast 120 days.

Is there any insight you can give me, as if I have to cancel a trip I wish to do it before Jan.

Hello,

I am trying to confirm the current status of the State of Minnesota Real ID Requirements for my employees travel in the United States.

- Has the state of Minnesota received a formal notification from DHS indicating when the implementation of the Real ID Act will be fully enforced?
- If the state has not been notified to date, can you confirm that the notification period prior to enforcement will be 90 Days?
- Once the Real ID act has been enforced, will a Minnesota enhanced ID be an approved form of ID to use to board commercial aircraft traveling in the continental US in lieu of a Real ID, and without an acceptable second form of ID?
- Do you have any other relevant information you can share about the Real ID Act with me at this time?

The website will be updated as DHS makes decisions on the status of the remaining states.

States granted extensions for 2016 will be noted as DHS makes decisions.

States that do not receive an additional extension for 2016 will be informed directly by DHS. Since these states do have a grace period to work with DHS until January 10, 2016, DHS will leave it up to these states to inform their residents while their status is still under review.

If you have any additional questions please let us know.

DHS plans to announce the schedule for REAL ID enforcement at commercial airports by the end of 2015.

DHS has also committed to providing travelers at least four months advance warning before implementation.

Finally, DHS has not yet decided whether or not the State of Illinois will receive an additional extension. If it does not, then enforcement of REAL ID at nuclear power plants and Federal facilities for Illinois residents will begin on January 10, 2016.

Under these circumstances, you should be able to use your Illinois driver's license or identification card for air travel in February 2016.

Dear (b)(6)

DHS has not determined that a New Mexico license is invalid.

DHS has simply determined that the State of New Mexico has not provided an adequate justification for noncompliance and therefore its licenses and identification cards may not be accepted by Federal agencies for: (1) entering nuclear power plants; (2) accessing Federal facilities; and at some future date (3) boarding commercial aircraft.

Moreover, the REAL ID Act does not determine what is a valid form of identification for any Federal purpose or any other transaction. It does not change the applicable Federal, state or local laws and regulations governing such transactions.

The REAL ID Act does not apply to the sale of firearms nor does it apply to a FBI background check conducted pursuant to a firearms sale.

I hope this helps.

If you have any additional questions please let me know.

Thank your quiek response. I appreeiate your time and help with me understanding the REAL ID Aet., but I am still a little confused so please bear with me a little longer. I will go into more detail in hope of explaining why I am still concerned about this.

You state it is for Federal ageneies for official purposes and this is when I get confused. The FBI is eharged with operating the NICS baekground eheck (offieial purpose) and do so using the federal 4473form and on that form question 20a requires a valid government ID (since you consider New Mexico ID invalid. Restricting access to a plane which is a form of commercial business / transaetion) it appears to me that it could be interpreted as failing to emply with the law if I sell a firearm to someone from New Mexico.

I have tried reading <https://www.govtraek.us/eongress/bills/109/hr418/text> and just got more confused and with the Real ID Aet aimed at stopping terrorist I am surprised that this law does not affect the Firearm industry. From what you state in your letter it specifiically only targets entering federal and restricted areas, but if I read the above link it is not limited to just entering and has broader application. I will repeat myself that link gets awfully confusing so I could be miss reading something causing more trouble than needed if so I do apologize for taking up your time. If you have further information you recommend I read to understand the REAL ID Aet. I will happily read something much easier to read.

Thank you again for your time and assistance with this issue. I really do not want to be troublesome but I really don't want to go to jail just for working.

Subject: Minors flying from MN to FL

Good Morning,

My kids, ages 14 and 15, will be flying from MN to FL sometime between March and May of 2016. I understand that drivers licenses from MN may no longer valid to board an airplane unless accompanied by another form of ID such as a passport. Will I need a passport for my 14 and 15 year old to travel via airplane from MN to FL? Or, will they be able to travel with me, there Mom, as long as I have a valid drivers license and passport to meet the requirement that are scheduled to take affect at some point in 2016.

My kids will be flying to FL with their cheer team for Nationals so I need to plan ahead to ensure there won't be any hold up with them going so your prompt response is greatly appreciated.

I will repeat myself that link gets awfully confusing so I could be miss reading something causing more trouble than needed if so I do apologize for taking up your time. If you have further information you recommend I read to understand the REAL ID Act. I will happily read something much easier to read.

Thank you again for your time and assistance with this issue. I really do not want to be troublesome but I really don't want to go to jail just for working.

Dear (b)(6)

TSA posts a list of acceptable forms of identification on its website. A Global Entry card is on the list of acceptable documents.

DHS has determined that the State of New Mexico does not qualify for an additional extension to the compliance deadline. Beginning January 10, 2016, New Mexico driver's licenses and identification cards may not be accepted by Federal agencies for entering nuclear power plants or accessing Federal facilities.

DHS has not yet announced a schedule for REAL ID enforcement at commercial airports. DHS plans to make that announcement by the end of 2015 and commits to providing travelers with at least four months lead time before enforcement takes effect. A New Mexico driver's license or identification card will be acceptable for commercial air travel until that time.

If you have any additional questions please let us know.

Thank you,

Greetings:

I just read in the news yesterday that New Mexico drivers' licenses are predicted to not be valid for ID to board an airplane as of 2016 - or until a state ruling that currently allows undocumented workers to obtain drivers' licenses is overturned.

I recently went through the process of interview and fingerprinting at the Albuquerque International Sunport DHS and obtained a Global Entry Trusted Traveler picture ID card. I'd like to know if this is valid as an ID at the airport or if I need to bring a passport with me when I fly domestically.

I travel again in December, so I appreciate your prompt response.

Many thanks,

DHS is currently reviewing the status of Alaska. Its current extension is valid until January 10, 2016.

DHS plans to announce the schedule for REAL ID enforcement at commercial airports by the end of 2015.

DHS has also committed to give travelers at least four month advance warning before implementing REAL ID enforcement at commercial airports.

Hi,

I live in the State of Alaska, and would like to know where I stand on using my drivers license as identification to fly in 2016.

The information I can find on the website is that they have an extension until January 10th, 2016, but nothing else.

I travel for my work and this is important for me to resolve by January.

Alaska does not offer an enhanced drivers license, and I do not have a passport.

Dear (b)(6)

The REAL ID Act established minimum standards for Federal acceptance of state-issued driver's licenses and identification for certain official purposes. It is not binding on states and state participation is voluntary. States continue to set standards for presentation of identity documents – for example, U.S. birth certificates – and almost all jurisdictions – whether REAL ID compliant or not – require new applicants to present birth certificates that are certified by the issuer.

Moreover, the REAL ID Act does not impact states' authority to grant the privilege of operating a motor vehicle to whomever they choose. States retain the authority to determine who is qualified to operate a motor vehicle and who is not. This is what was meant by the phrase "being licensed by a state to drive".

We regret the confusion caused by the wording of this Item and will seek to clarify it in future web pages.

Hi.

I need to renew my drivers' license, and it looks like I need pay the state of California for a certified copy of my birth certificate in order to do so. I don't understand this when it says that the Real ID does not apply to being licensed by a state to drive (see below from <http://www.dhs.gov/real-id-public-faqs>.) Why does it say that it doesn't apply, when the Oregon regulations state that we do need to provide documentation? Why am I being forced to pay an additional $25 in order to provide documentation of citizenship? (I was born in California in 1969, and first got a drivers' license in Oregon in 1993. Was licensed in California prior to that, and also licensed in Washington for 2 years while in school there.)

Can you please explain the discrepancy between what it says on your website and what the state of Oregon is asking for? How does it "not apply" if I am being asked for the documentation to renew a license?

Dear (b)(6)

The REAL ID Act is only binding on Federal agencies.

It prohibits the acceptance of state-issued driver's licenses and identification cards by Federal agencies for official purposes — specifically, for entering nuclear power plants, accessing Federal facilities, and boarding commercial aircraft —if the state is not meeting Federal minimum standards.

The REAL ID Act is not binding on states or private enterprises of any kind.

The bottom line: the REAL ID Act does not apply to the sale of firearms or any other commercial transaction.

DHS is currently reviewing the status of the State of Illinois and will announce whether or not the State will receive an additional extension shortly.

If Illinois does not receive an additional extension for 2016, its driver's licenses and identification may not be accepted for access to nuclear power plants and Federal facilities beginning January 10, 2016.

If Illinois does receive an additional extension, its driver's licenses and identification cards will be acceptable for all official purposes through October 2016.

DHS has not yet announced the schedule for enforcement at commercial airports. When it does, DHS will give travelers ample time -- at least four months -- to prepare. If Illinois receives an additional extension, use of your Illinois driver's license or identification card will not be impacted.

REAL ID enforcement at Federal facilities is scheduled to begin on January 10, 2016. As of that date, your New Mexico driver's license may not be accepted.

Since Federal facilities retain control over what identification documents they will accept in lieu of a New Mexico driver's license, please consult with the access control office at your local facilities.

Subject: New Mexico Driver's License

Hello,

I work in the HR department and have a few questions regarding the status of the New Mexico Drivers License.

Our line of work requires us to be able to enter federal facilities. Now, due to the real id act and New Mexico's non-compliance, our driver's licenses will no longer be sufficient to obtain access to those facilities.

I have looked and looked for a list of acceptable identification documents (in lieu of state DL) and have come up empty. The DHS website only has reference to TSA requirements. I would like to assume that, since DHS only refers to TSA's list, those are the now acceptable forms of identification, but I would appreciate clarification on this.

I appreciate your time and help in this subject.

Thank you.

Subject: Real ID

I wish to question the rationale behind having the new REAL ID required by states and the District of Columbia, be done in black and white photograph. I recently had to have my lost drivers license replaced only to have a new ID wherein I am unrecognizable because the photograph produced is very dark "black" to be exact. In this climate of political correctness and plain common sense, I would think common sense would prevail to reflect the varying shades of the population. This shades varies not only amongst those of African descent and within the diaspora but also within the south Asian population.

I would like to know what recourse I have in presenting a federally mandated ID with which I am unrecognizable?

How does an unrecognizable federally mandated and issued ID secure the nation?

I would like to know if the unmatched superior technology of the United States of America is unable to effectively produce an equally secure ID in color rather than black and white?

Thank you,

Good morning,

I was issued a REAL Driver's License from the state of West Virginia in early 2014. I recently moved to Texas and need to transfer my driver's license to here. I tried to research how to transfer federal IDs from one state to another, but I have not be able to find any information on it. I called the Texas Department of Public Safety to try to get information about this and they did not know what a REAL ID was. Since Texas is not currently issuing federal IDs, am I required to surrender my WV federal license for a non-federal TX license? Or can I continue to use my WV license since it is still valid through the middle of 2017? Can you please provide me with some information on how to transfer my federal driver's license from West Virginia to Texas?

Thank you (b)(6) for your quick reply and info. resources. I have reviewed it all. Just to be sure, this is what I understand from the material:

1. Currently, La. has an extension to Oct. 10, 2016.
2. This means we will be allowed airline boarding in January 2016 with a current La. Drivers license and under 18 is allowed boarding with an authorized escort.

Is this a correct understanding by me?

Sorry to be so persistent and repetitive but Disney is a large expensive to miss if I can't get there because I don't have proper ID. (Not to mention the grandparent abuse I would suffer)
Again, thank you and good day.

Sincerely,

(b)(6)

Subject:	Nevada ID

Hello,

I would like to apply for a US Passport. I have a Nevada Drivers License that I just renewed. I just noticed on it that it says at the top "Not for Federal Use". Can I still use it as my ID to get a US Passport. I have my birth certificate and all the other required documentation. I read on the DMVNV.com website that it is still good until October 1, 2020. I see on the Homeland Security site that Nevada is a complaint/extension state. So again can I use this Drivers License for a passport or do I have to go down to the DMV and get a new RealID Nevada Drivers License?

From the Homeland Security website:

States and other jurisdictions have made significant progress in enhancing the security of their licenses over the last number of years. As a result, approximately 70-80% of all U.S. drivers hold licenses from jurisdictions: (1) determined to meet the Act's standards; or (2) that have received extensions. Individuals holding driver's licenses or identification cards from these jurisdiction may continue to use them as before. (See Section B of the sidebar)

From the Nevada Department of Motor Vehicle:

Yes, Nevada is in compliance with the Real ID Act. The Transportation Security Administration (TSA) has stated it will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued ID cards from compliant jurisdictions until October 1, 2020. This includes cards marked "NOT FOR FEDERAL OFFICIAL USE."

Beginning October 1, 2020, however, the federal government will require people boarding commercial aircraft using a state driver's license or ID card to possess a card that meets Real ID standards. A Real ID license or ID will also be required to access federal facilities where ID is required.

Please see the following two web pages for more information at the federal level:

- • * Real ID Enforcement in Brief (DHS)
- • * Acceptable IDs (TSA)

There is no need to visit a DMV office to obtain a Real ID-compliant card until your next renewal or other license change. Any Nevada driver's license or identification card will be considered compliant by DHS through October 1, 2020. Nevada Driver Authorization Cards are not valid for identification and are not accepted at federal facilities.

Thank you in advance for your help and time in answering the question if I can use my Nevada Drivers License to get my passport.

Sincerely,

(b)(6)

DHS requires visitors to present government-issued identification for access to its facilities. For visitors presenting a state-issued driver's license or identification card, DHS may only accept such documents if they are issued by states that are REAL ID compliant. If the state that issued your license is listed as noncompliant, please bring an alternate form of government-issued photo ID – such as a passport or Federal employee, military, or veteran identification card to facilitate access.

Until announced otherwise, the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept valid driver's licenses and identification cards issued by all states. DHS plans to announce the schedule for any changes to air travel requirements by the end of the year, and will ensure that state governments and the traveling public are notified at least 120 days in advance of implementation.

Furthermore, New York has recently received an extension through October 10, 2016, meaning Federal agencies may accept New York driver's licenses and identification card for the duration of that extension.

To Whom This May Concern,

I'm an Associate in the Wish Granting Department at Make-A-Wish of Metro New York and Western New York. 60% of our wishes involve airline travel and we are trying to determine what will happen with the REAL ID requirements beginning in 2016 and how it will affect our traveling wish families.

Through online research, I understand that New York State is currently non-compliant. Beginning in January, will our wish families be able to board a domestic flight with a non-enhanced New York driver's license or New York State Identification Card? Will our traveling families who do not have a US passport, have to apply for an enhanced driver's license? And if they don't drive, will there be an enhanced state ID or will they need to apply for passport?

I really appreciate any help and guidance that you can provide. Once I have this information, I would like to share it with the other chapters in New York State.

Subject: Urgent questions about REAL ID

Hi there, I have a question about the REAL ID law with regards to New Hampshire licenses,

It says on the DHS webpage that the state of New Hampshire's extension has expired, and thus enforcement begins January 19, 2015.

It also says on the DHS webpage:

"Each phase will begin with a 3-month period where agencies will provide notice to individuals attempting to use driver's licenses or identification cards from noncompliant states but still allow access."

If enforcement for NH began in January of this year, will the 3-month grace period beginning in 2016 still apply to fliers with NH licenses?

This is endlessly confusing for me, as I have been planning my trip to California for months and never imagined I would need a passport. Now I am not sure if I will even get my passport back in time for my flight!

Thanks,

We are from NY. My husband has a passport and I have an enhanced driver's license. I understand that we will both still be able to travel domestic flights when the Real ID fully takes effect. What about our minor children, when travelling with us? Do we need to get passports for them? What are the rules for children? They are both currently age 5 and 2.

Hello,

I am a resident of Minnesota and I understand that in order to fly after mid January I will need an enhanced license or passport. This isn't a problem as my husband and I have the Minnesota enhanced license. My question is, do my minor children need passports?

Minnesota does not offer an enhanced ID card at this time, only a driver's license.

I couldn't quite figure it out on the homeland security website.

Thank you,

DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

You can find an acceptable list of ID's for airline travel from TSA here:

If your child is younger than 18, they are not required to have ID to travel. They'll just need their boarding pass.

Subject: REAL ID Implementation

Hi,

I recently heard about the REAL ID act and have questions about how its implementation will affect people flying in 2016. My organization regularly flies people around the country and we need to know what to expect.

Starting on Jan 1, 2016, what can we expect for people flying domestically?

- • * Is it acceptable to show two forms of ID - i.e., a drivers license and a Utility Bill (Address), Voter Registration Card, Vehicle Registration Card/Title, Paycheck Stub with Name/Address, Cancelled Check or Bank Statement, Social Security Card, Birth Certificate, etc?
- • * If so, what combinations of ID are valid at airports?
- • * Can low-income people (people without enough disposable income to purchase or buy an "enhanced" drivers license or passport) obtain them for free or for reduced cost?
- • * How can one tell if their drivers license is a "Real ID"?
- • * What kind of documents do people who are not yet US citizens or are here on a visa show?
- • * What about undocumented people who are waiting on their DACA applications?
- • * How does the 3 month grace period work?

I'm sure I will have more questions, but the TSA website and FAQ is very unclear. Please let me know as soon as possible what we can expect with this law!

Many thanks,

Hi there, I have a question about the REAL ID law with regards to New Hampshire licenses,

It says on the DHS webpage that the state of New Hampshire's extension has expired, and thus enforcement begins January 19, 2015.

It also says on the DHS webpage:

"Each phase will begin with a 3-month period where agencies will provide notice to individuals attempting to use driver's licenses or identification cards from noncompliant states but still allow access."

If enforcement for NH began in January of this year, will the 3-month grace period beginning in 2016 still apply to fliers with NH licenses?

This is endlessly confusing for me, as I have been planning my trip to California for months and never imagined I would need a passport. Now I am not sure if I will even get my passport back in time for my flight!

Thanks,

Thank you for your quick reply. I know my mom will be fine flying in 2015. Your e-mail says regular driver's licenses are OK at least until 2016. My question is about her return flight in April of 2016. If my mom will need to have a different ID for traveling in April 2016, she needs to get it now, before she leaves the state of Michigan. Please advise...

Regarding the following that has been released as of late:

"Pursuant to REAL ID regulations, beginning December 1, 2014, federal agencies may not accept State-issued driver's licenses or identification cards for official purposes from individuals born after December 1, 1964, unless the license or card is REAL ID-compliant and was issued by a compliant State as determined by DHS. Also, beginning December 1, 2017, federal agencies may not accept driver's licenses or identification cards for official purposes from any individual unless the card is REAL ID-compliant and was issued by a compliant State as determined by DHS. This final rule changes both document enrollment dates to October 1, 2020. Nothing in this rule affects the prohibition against federal agencies accepting for official purposes licenses and identification cards issued by noncompliant States, pursuant to the REAL ID Act and in accordance to the phased enforcement schedule."

1. I am trying to get clarification as to why this targets individuals born after December 1, 1964.
2. Why does this not affect individuals born prior to December 1, 1964?
3. Will this affect those individuals born prior to December 1, 1964?
4. If so, when will they need to be compliant?
5. What does this statement mean, "This final rule changes both document enrollment dates to October 1, 2020"?

Thank you in advance for your cooperation with helping clarify these questions.

Have a great day!

Hi -

I am trying to advise clients correctly but not cause any unnecessary panic. I am trying to understand the terminology in this bulletin:
<http://www.dhs.gov/real-id-enforcement-brief>

Does

Aircraft (Acceptable with 2nd form of ID) No sooner than 2016

mean that Louisiana, Minnesota, New Hampshire, and New York residents will all now need passports (since their DL is not valid) as of January 1, 2016 or does it mean you will enforce this no sooner than some time in 2016

Thank you for clarifying this for me

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

Your cousin should have a passport from their home country and this will be sufficient for air travel.

You can find an acceptable list of ID's for airline travel from TSA here:
<http://www.tsa.gov/traveler-information/acceptable-ids>

Hello,

I am hoping to attend the EPA hearing to give testimony on Sept 23rd, but it is held in the EPA Region 8 building in Denver, CO, and I have a NH issued ID that is not compliant with government standards. The confirmation email from the EPA had an attached FAQ that listed these as alternative ID's that are acceptable for entering the building "Acceptable alternative forms of identification include: federal employee badges, passports, enhanced driver's licenses and military identification cards. For additional information for the status of your state regarding REAL ID, go to <http://www.dhs.gov/real-id-enforcement-brief>."

I was wondering if there is a more complete list because I do not have any of the following, and could not get a passport before then. Would a birth certificate, or a copy of it suffice?

Thanks,

Good Afternoon,

I am looking for clarification regarding the phase 4 rollout of the REAL ID act.

My family is traveling from Buffalo to Ft Lauderdale by air in February to board a cruise ship.

We just got our US Passport cards. We have NY drivers licenses but they are NOT enhanced. Are we able to use those with our passport cards to board or will we need to get EDL's from NY first?

Thank you for your time.

We both do not have birth certificates but do have valid AZ and LA driver licenses and social security cards. The real ID act says that we can't fly commercially after January 1st without acquiring new id's. Is this still the case?

It looked like on your website that Phase 4 compliance was still not final.

Thank you for your non-answer. This is discrimination. It is DHS that is causing the discrimination. It just cost me over $100 to order all the documents needed to prove the chain for my name. I had all of these documents until my ex-husband threw me down a flight of stairs. After being released from the hospital my best friend came to get me. I had an hour and a half to grab all that I could to start over in a new life before my ex was released from jail. At the time my neck and back were in a brace that did not allow me to move a whole lot.

So now because of your mandates, I am being further punished. Men are not required to present all of these documents, so it is unlawful to require that women present all of these documents.

The state of Nevada has the same requirements for ID as the federal government since it will all be mandatory by 2020 anyway. DHS is leading the way for discrimination across the entire USA. Since these original documents have to be presented to the SSA upon name changes, women should be able to get a certified copy of said name changes through SSA and use that as proof of legal name changes. After all, SSA is part of the federal government.
